Ed. reform bill close to passing

Andover would get more state aid, but have to spend more money, too

By Lisa Boudreau

The state education reform bill that could bring Andover an additional $275,000 in state aid next year is one step away from becoming law. It passed final House and Senate enactment votes earlier this week, and as of Townsmen presstime Wednesday afternoon, it was sitting on Gov. William Weld's desk waiting to be signed into law.

To qualify for the aid, Andover would have to spend $7,000 more next year, to up its share of the budgets of Greater Lawrence Technical School and Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute, according to state Sen. John O'Brien's office.

To remain eligible for the additional state aid, Andover and other communities would

Farewell Charlotte Smith

By Lisa Boudreau

During Charlotte Smith's tenure as the director/curator of the Andover Historical Society, she has overseen major renovations to the group's headquarters on Main Street, designed many exhibits and helped expand the society's membership to more than 550 people.

Tomorrow, Friday, Ms. Smith will leave the post she has held for five years at the Historical Society to accept a job in Boston at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum. In July she will begin as the Boston muse-

Parents answer their teen-agers

Parents sympathetic to teen-agers' concerns

By Don Staruk

Parents understand teens' desire for respect, their need for a sense of value and their wanting a teen center in town, and they fear that a failure to respond to those and other concerns the kids have aired could be worse than not having talked with them at all.

Those were some of the points brought out by parents who responded this week to what teens have said in the Townsmen's series, Andover for Teens. Some of the concerns teens expressed include that they want more respect, they want adults to stop lecturing them, and they want to be listened to. They also want a teen center, better public transportation in town and to be trusted with important jobs.

Here's what some of the parents who

Exploring challenging programs for teen-agers

By Don Staruk

Methuen's Police Explorers is a group of teens, 14 to 20 years old, interested in law enforcement and who are trained in every phase of policing by real police using real equipment. They are used for security, traffic control, search and rescue and at a variety of other activities, both public and private.

"I just used them for Memorial Day. They did traffic," said Officer Al Torrisi, director of the program.

On Halloween night they were used to patrol the town's elderly apartments and keep watch on the senior center building.

"They've searched for a body on the river banks," Officer Torrisi added.

They can also help search for lost children.

Someone pulls a dirty trick on local gardener

By Allyson Bates

Talk about cruel deeds. Someone stole precious perennials from Barbara Calnan's garden at 78 Main St. on June 1, 2 and 3.

"They obviously know what they are doing," Mrs. Calnan said. "They have dug up my most valuable Oriental poppies, lupines, and Black Dragon lilies. Kids would just have trampled and destroyed the plants. This is someone who has carefully thought this through."

Mrs. Calnan, an Andover resident for 18 years, has never had anything stolen from her easily accessible garden until now.

"People always ask permission to look at my garden, and I even opened it up to the public for three days last summer," she said. "But there won't even be a garden for people to look at if the stealing doesn't stop."

The well-known garden is not only a scenic spot on Main Street, but it also is a therapeutic escape for Mrs. Calnan.

Fighting breast cancer, which is currently in remission, Mrs. Calnan diligently works in her garden and explained that "it is important to me because I couldn't imagine not spending time in my garden and it is such a healing therapy for me."

Since Mrs. Calnan must be careful of her arms due to her illness, her husband, Richard, usually helps with the wheelbarrel in the garden.

"After my husband's hip replacement, Nancy Collins and Abigail Johnston, of DeWolfe Realty, mulched my garden in their free time since my husband and I were unable to do it," Mrs.

Calnan explained. "The people at DeWolfe keep me happy by telling me how beautiful my garden is. They are my biggest supporters."

Among the missing perennials, a small Cupid statuary was taken. An $85 olive wood wreath, clay pots, and other plants also have disappeared in the past three weeks from the Calnans' backyard, which is shared with Flowers by Steve Andover, 74 Main St.

"Around three weeks ago, a $125 giant Diplodemia plant was taken from our backyard," store manager Bill Carter said. "We also lost cases of imported blue Tynan glass bottles from Wales."

"Whoever it is that is stealing from us really must like colors since they've stolen our miniature cinnamon pinks and carnations," Mrs. Calnan said. "However, they'll get stung if they try to replant the Oriental poppy because you can only separate them in the fall and it'll just die on them."

The police department is investigating the case.

Terminated Phillips teacher requests stay

By Don Staruk

A Phillips Academy math professor whose contract has not been renewed by the school for next year and who has sued to keep his job, will ask the courts next week to require PA to keep him on staff until the lawsuit is decided.

Alexander "Zab" Warren, of 20 Hidden Field Road, a math teacher for 29 years at the school, was given notice last April that he would not be rehired next year. The school said he is being let go because he failed to respond to criticism of his teaching skills, according to a statement from PA last December. The school also denied Mr. Warren and his wife, Sarah, who joined the faculty in 1982 and is currently director of the language laboratory, the right to live in campus housing after his contract expires in August.

Mr. Warren claims he is being let go because he is a tough grader and the school's priorities have changed so that keeping the students happy is more important than the education they receive.

The Warrens filed suit against the school in Salem Superior Court on Nov. 19, 1992, requesting his reinstatement, compensation for damages and the right to continue living in PA-owned housing as long as either he or his wife are a member of the faculty.

Community calendar

Attention area organizations: The Townsmen keeps a listing of coming events, Andover Community Calendar, with the goal of avoiding booking two important events on the same date.

If your organization has scheduled a fund-raiser, concert, play or any other major event, write it down and send it to Andover Community Calendar, Andover Townsman, 33 Chestnut St., Andover Ma. 01810, or fax it to 508-470-2819.

If you are planning a major event, call Perry Colmore at the Townsmen, 475-1943, to make sure an event is not planned in this area for the same date. The newspaper will not take calendar entries over the phone.

Summer Fun

The Townsmen will publish a special section June 24 called Summer Fun. It will include a large calendar of events that occur in this area in the summer. Organizations can send information about events to the Townsmen by 5 p.m. Thursday, June 17, to be included in that section. Questions? Call Jack Grady, assistant editor, at 475-1943.

In a hearing scheduled for this Monday, June 14, in Salem Superior Court the Warrens will ask that he be kept on as a teacher, "with such teaching assignments as Phillips chooses to assign, and that (the Warrens) be allowed to remain in their faculty residence, pending trial," according to the motion filed by their attorneys.

Women to discuss effective hiring practices

The Merrimack Valley Business Women's Network breakfast meeting will be held this morning, Thursday, at 7:30 at Jackson's Restaurant in Methuen. The topic to be discussed is "Effective Hiring."

Speaker is Barbara Caynes, director of the Center for Applied Arts at Bradford College. She will share successful recruitment techniques used in higher education to fill mid- to high-level management positions. She will discuss job descriptions, organizing a search committee, interviews, resumes and more.

For further information call the YWCA, 38 Lawrence St., Lawrence, at 687-0331.

Messages for dads . . . Townsmen sponsors Father's Day contest

Attention kids of all ages. The Townsmen encourages you to write about your father in honor of Father's Day. Choose one of two subjects: "What I like about my dad," or, "Messages for dads."

Essays should be no longer than two typed pages, double spaced. They are due tomorrow, Friday, June 11, at 5 p.m. The best will be published.

Andover works to be bio-tech friendly

By Alix Driscoll

The Andover Board of Health took another step, on Monday evening, to make it easier for companies that do research with or manufacture recombinant DNA (rDNA) materials or locate in this town.

Recombinant DNA is DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) prepared in the lab by breaking up and splicing together DNA from several different species of organisms. It is genetic material found in all living cells. Recombinant means combining segments of DNA. The process is called genetic engineering and the resulting material may be used to fight disease.

New regulations

The board unanimously approved the new National Institutes of Health (NIH) "Good Large Scale Practice" regulations. These are a less strict version of the 1981 federal rules, "Biological Levels of Containment," set up to regulate the early experiments in rDNA. The NIH relaxed the rules for disposal and containment of genetic material because the industry has a good track record, said Everett F. Penney Jr., health director for the town. Monday's approval also allows the town to accept future NIH guidelines.

The approval puts Andover in a competitive position by having a regulatory atmosphere that encourages this type of industry to locate here. In addition, the town needs to support the firms that are here, said Mr. Penney.

Earlier biomedical standards

The earlier rules were adopted by Andover in August 1986. This made Andover one of the few towns to have in place rDNA regulations. Genetics Institute Inc. moved some of its facilities from Cambridge to 1 Burt Road in 1987. Two years later, Eisai Research Institute of Boston, a division of a Japanese pharmaceutical company, located in the industrial park area.

Genetics Institute

According to Tony Gemmellaro, biosafety officer for Genetics Institute, the firm's branch in Andover is mainly a manufacturing facility. It is engaged in the development of human pharmaceuticals through use of recombinant DNA. Its main product is Recombinant TM anti-hemophilic factor (rAHF), which promotes blood clotting and is sold in the United States, Canada and Sweden. In addition, Genetics manufactures Leucomax GM-CSF, which promotes blood cell growth as a factor in cancer therapy, and is approved for sale in several European countries.

The Andover facility employees about 450 full-time employees plus contracted workers. Genetics will soon double its number of employees here. The firm is building a new plant for research and development, said Mr. Gemmellaro.

"Genetics is in favor of the changes because they can streamline things and make them more efficient. They will cause energy savings. Not having to use the kill tank (to heat up and sterilize the waste products of manufacturing, before disposing of them in the sewer system) will save lots of energy," said Mr. Gemmellaro. This will happen when the commonwealth changes its plumbing code regulations.

Eisai Research Institute

Eisai Research Institute, a pharmaceutical company located here on 4 Corporate Drive with about 50 employees, has a small group using rDNA, said Dan Rossignol, senior research biologist. He said rDNA is used for research purposes only to help scientists understand the influence of drugs on the body.

Town-industry liaison

The Institutional Biosafety Committee, the liaison committee between each biotechnology industry and the town Board of Health, recommended the less-restrictive changes to the Board of Health to conform with new national guidelines that went into effect in 1991.

On the town side, the committee is made up of Mr. Penney, and Andover resident Steven Loring, M.D., a researcher in pulmonary physiology at Harvard School of Public Health. It also includes the following people from the company that's meeting with the town for review of experiments: director of research, company physician, director of health and safety, lawyer, and the director of the research program up for approval. The committee meets three or four times a year.

According to Mr. Penney, the goals are to protect the public health and to encourage biotechnology firms to locate in town.

LOOKING FOR A LENDER

Once you've found the perfect home, the search for the perfect loan begins. There are many factors to consider, including not only the interest rate and loan fees, but also the lender's general reputation.

Your professional Realtor can provide you with several mortgage lender contacts and can help you compare their various programs. Also some lenders may have great rates, but may also have very conservative standards for qualifying customers. Others may be more willing to consider people who are marginally qualified or have less than perfect credit histories. Some lenders have local underwriters and can process loans quickly. Others may need extra time to process paperwork for investors thousands of miles away. The ordinary consumer deals with only a few mortgage lenders over a lifetime, but Realtors deal with many of them every month. This expertise can help you match your individual needs to the many offerings in this complicated marketplace.

Neighbors upset by ZBA permit for gravel crushing

By Jennifer Lewis

The Zoning Board of Appeals approved a special permit to the Deloury Construction Company, by a vote of 4-1, Saturday, June 5. The decision left Lowell Junction Road resident Linda Green "flabbergasted" and many other residents "very upset."

The permit, which will allow the company to continue crushing rocks and storing gravel, loam and other non-hazardous material, was appealed by Lowell Junction Road residents Philip and Helen Wormwood, John and Patricia Thomson, and Donald and Linda Green, of 11, 13 and 15 Lowell Junction Road respectively, at a meeting last Thursday night. The residents believe the company is unsafely going beyond the measures of the previous permit.

A major concern of the residents is the possible existence of asbestos as a waste product of the rock crushing. Although the area has not yet been tested for traces of asbestos, residents believe the tests are needed.

"No one has tested the area because they [the town] said that they don't have the resources," Ms. Green said. "They are going to wait until children come down with respiratory infections before they do anything."

Carol McDonough, a member of the ZBA, said that the Board of Health was responsible for testing the site and not the ZBA.

Dec-Tam, an asbestos abatement company located across the street from the Deloury Company, also complained. In a statement to the ZBA, company officials noted that dust from the Deloury Company continually blew across the street, got all over everything, and ruined some computers in their building.

In a letter supporting the abutters' cause, Dec-Tam's Chief Executive, Caroline Bateson, noted, "We cannot risk any misguided liability suits from asbestos fibers released from the crushing of concrete across the street."

Ms. McDonough, however, said that the Building Department and Board of Health made weekly trips to the site and reported that there weren't any problems with decibel or dust levels. "We have to go on what the Board of Health says," she said.

The residents believe they presented a lot of valuable and official information, which the ZBA isn't seriously taking into consideration. This information includes video tapes, photographs and official documents such as the bylaws set by the Board of Health. The bylaws prohibit the presence of a junk or scrap yard, which emits dust, smoke, and other hazardous odors that might jeopardize the safety of residents.

Ms. Green believes that the information presented to the ZBA from the Board of Health was misleading. "I videotaped the site in action and the excessive noise and dust was obvious," she said. "Another video was taken by the Board of Health and the noise and dust were not as excessive - the difference between the two tapes was substantial."

ZBA members said that this information was taken into consideration in the decision.

The 1986 Planning Board recommendation stated that the site would be used as "a contractors' storage yard. No sifting, screening, or crushing of materials shall be permitted." Resident Helen Wormwood felt very disillusioned by the ZBA's willingness to ignore the Planning Board's original statement.

"In the initial permit, they [the Planning Board] said that there would be 'no manufacturing of hot top, asphalt, or cement nor any stone crushing,'" she said. "I never expected in my wildest moments to fight something like this."

Ms. Wormwood also noted that the site affects the property values of the residential area. "The Greens tried to sell their house and they [the prospective buyers] backed off because of the dust," she said.

The residents' concerns stem from the ZBA's opposition to the permit in 1986. "The special permit was opposed in 1986 to allow screening of the site," Ms. Green said. "It expired in 1989 and was not renewed."

Ms. Green also noted that the contractor doesn't have a permit with the Department of Environmental Protection.

In 1992 the Planning Board decided in a unanimous decision that the Building Department was not enforcing the ZBA's restrictions. Planning Board members ruled that the site would be screened once a week.

In December, 1992 the site was closed down by the Board of Health.

Other concerns the residents have include the dangerous location of the site and the possibility of illegal dumping. "The site is accessible to kids," Ms. Green said.

The Building Department monitored the site for the past year and did not find any violations in the board's prior decision.

C. Ryan Buckley, chairman of the ZBA, said that the decision was a very difficult one. "The petitioner was in compliance but the abutters say that there are still noise and general violations," he said.

Other members of the ZBA were reluctant to comment or did not return the Townsmen's calls.

Police sponsor summer camp for teen

By Don Staruk

The Andover Police Relief Association is making a donation to the Andover/North Andover YMCA to sponsor an Andover youth for two weeks at summer camp.

"We specified it should be for an Andover boy or girl," Sgt. William MacKenzie said this week.

The donation will allow one boy or girl from town, who couldn't otherwise afford it, to attend Camp Lawrence or Camp Nokomis on Lake Winnipesaukee. Sgt. MacKenzie said the Relief Association heard the YMCA was looking for sponsors and the police decided to help out.

"We give back to the community," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

The relief association is a benevolent group that provides support for families of police officers who are facing crises due to injury, death or other hardship.

The association gets money from membership dues and other donations, such as when a resident or business wishes to express gratitude for service.

The group supports several local youth programs, including the Community Assessment, Support and Knowledge (ASK) Team, a drug and alcohol abuse prevention program, and Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), both at the High School. The group cosponsored a talk by Derek Sanderson, former Boston Bruin, on drug and alcohol abuse at the school a few weeks ago.

tion was based on Thursday's meeting and a Saturday viewing of the site during which they did not see any immediate violations. The ZBA had also viewed the site many times.

Mr. Buckley said that some additional conditions will be added to the permit. While he was not specific as to what the conditions will be, he said they will be filed with the town clerk the first week in July and will be followed by a 23-day appeal period.

The residents have not given up the fight.

"We are going to consider all of our options and pursue this as far as we can," Ms. Green said. "There are too many things the Zoning Board has overstepped their bounds on."

Jenn Lewis is an intern with the Andover Townsman.

"I am extremely concerned about the funding crunch the industry is facing and I expect that the committee will work to give the state's providers a better direction for meeting this crisis."

Mr. Landa has been a member of the 20-member committee for four years. He will serve as chairman until May 1995. He is also a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Health Care Financial Management Association and the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

CONTRIBUTING FACTORS

All too often, back pain is attributed to a back injury that is looked upon as a traumatic, one-time event. It may be closer to the truth, however, to say that back pain often results from an accumulation of mini-events or non-events. In fact, many studies show that low back pain comes on gradually in 60 percent of all cases. Heavy lifting or twisting may be the events that "break the camel's back," but it is the inattention to back health that is likely to set the stage for back pain; that is either a patient continually lifts items incorrectly or fails to strengthen the muscles associated with lifting. From a structural standpoint, a patient may fail to have diagnosed and corrected a spinal misalignment. The dynamics of the spine must be paid proper attention.

Back pain can be the result of a number of reasons. We are committed to getting to the source of the problem without the use of drugs or surgery. For more information, please call DELORENZO GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We offer natural and safe care for the entire family and accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. The health community and public are finally coming to see the benefits of prevention, which chiropractic has always espoused.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

RELIEF FOR THE NIGHTLY GRIND

Nighttime grinding of the teeth (bruxism) not only sounds awful, it can wear down the enamel surfaces of clenched teeth. To avoid this unnecessary wear and tear, the dentist might prescribe a night guard. This U-shaped piece of plastic, or splint, fits over the teeth of either the upper or lower jaw. By essentially fitting the teeth with this protective cover, the wearer is rendered unable to close the jaw completely. Splints made of soft rubber may be fine as protective mouth pieces for athletes, but night guards should be constructed of hard acrylic material in order to discourage tooth clenching. Wearing a night guard may take some getting use to, but, in time, the tongue and jaws adjust to their new position.

Bruxism isn't only a nighttime activity. Some tooth-grinders continue this damaging practice throughout the day. If you'd like to discuss this problem further or if you would like to make an appointment, please call my office at 475-2431, 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. We bring you this column each week as a public service to help you understand some further aspects of dental health care and to offer some practical hints to help you and your family. Hours: Mon and Thur 10-8, Tues and Fri 8-6, and by appointment.

PS: Some nighttime tooth grinders accommodate so well to their habits that the grinding sound is absent.

Phillips Academy holds 215th commencement

By Alix Driscoll

Phillips Academy graduated 356 students Sunday, including 39 Andover residents and 34 international students from 23 countries. Due to sodden skies and unseasonal cold the commencement, called 'Order of Exercises at Exhibition,' was held in the sports cage. Having the 215th commencement indoors led to a sense of intimacy as the class of 1993 was together for the last time. They received their diplomas in a great circle on the upper level track.

School President Ore Owodunni, of Lagos, Nigeria, addressed his classmates, urging them to view difficulties in life as a puzzle and to relax when confronted by differences. He drew the analogy of his difficulties in learning drown-proofing as a graduation requirement, with challenges all will face in life. "To relax in dangerous waters is contrary to us. Do not see differences as an adversary," said Mr. Owodunni.

challenged the graduates "to use their Andover liberal arts education to understand the changes in the world."

In four years this class has seen the demise of the Berlin Wall, the end of the Cold War, lessening of nuclear arms, the breakup of the Soviet Union and release of Nelson Mandela from prison, he explained.

"You have been a class rooted in tradition, but willing to change. Weave the fabric of community and have a sense of hope about the future and what you can do," he said.

"Some people see things as they are and ask why; other people dream things that have never been and ask why not?..." said Mr. McNemar, quoting Robert Kennedy on Sunday's 25th anniversary of his death.

By tradition, five prizes were given: Non Sibi Award for service to others, to Elizabeth Cooper of Allentown, Pa.; Yale Bowl for highest proficiency in scholarship and athletics, to Ethan Philpott of North Andover; Faculty Prize for scholarship, to Jeremy Parise of Westerly, R.I.; Madam Sarah Abbot Award, to Susan Crowe of North Andover; and Aurelian Honor Society for outstanding character, to Nicholas Thompson of Chestnut Hill.

The 39 graduating Andover seniors' names follow:

Yoonhee Ahn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Geunghwan Ahn of 5 Forest St.; David J. Bernstein, son of Beth L. Bernstein of 129 Chestnut St. and William H. Bernstein of North Andover; Elizabeth Canterbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Canterbury of 9 Old South Lane; Kenneth T. Chen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Chen of 14 Blueberry Circle; Lauren J. Cohen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alan S. Cohen of 39 Smithshire Estates; Douglas G. Cullen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Neil H. Cullen of Phillips Academy; Elizabeth S. Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Cutler of 10 Deerberry Lane;

John L. Dwight III, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dwight Jr. of 33 Algoquin Avenue; James J. Eckels, son of Dr. and Mrs. James M. Eckels of 95 Ballardvale Road; Lucas J. Edwards, son of Marlys A. ## AHS seniors hunt for fun — and find it 'on safari'

By Allyson Bates

The 1993 Andover High School graduating class celebrated its commencement in a unique way — safari style. Shortly after mortarboards were thrown into the air, the new graduates threw themselves onto a Velcro wall at the 1993 Senior Safari Monday night.

Students — 260 out of the 296 in the senior class — attended Monday's all-night celebration from 10 p.m.-5 a.m., which included volleyball, caricatures, a manicurist, fortune teller, hair stylist, tattoo parlor, karaoke, baby picture contest, ping-pong, movies, reggae and rock 'n' roll band, disk jockey, painted boxers, candid photos, food, a Velcro wall, and much more.

"This '93 class is a very cohesive group," explained Carol Viola, 11 Cabot St. "They have stuck together since elementary school and are really each other's best friends, which is indicative of ticket sales."

The high school gymnasium, adorned in brightly colored murals, a jeep, palm trees, giraffes, and butterflies, was the location for this "drug-free/alcohol-free celebration."

"The kids were having a good time as they went from one activity to another," parent chaperone Linda Brammer, 21 Keystone Way, said.

Tim Thomas, AHS principal, gets the Senior Safari night off to a flying start as he lands, upside down, in his Velcro suit and sticks to the special wall, made of the suit's Velcro counterpart. The wall and the flying principal were just part of the entertainment the AHS senior class was treated to by the organizers of the evening. It was non-stop activities from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. The whirlwind day began with an awards brunch at 9 a.m. Monday. (See the story on page 8A in the special section, Graduation 1993.)

Doherty Middle School teams up with PA's Addison Gallery as students learn to complete a geometric wall drawing

By Lisa Boudreau

Math and visual arts may not be the two most commonly associated subjects, but for 30 eighth-graders at Doherty Middle School, the connection is as simple as black and white — literally.

The students spent their free time after school during the past three weeks completing a replica of an internationally known artist's black-and-white, geometric wall drawing. The 24-foot long, 8-foot high wall drawing now graces an entire hallway in the school.

The students worked with the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy to reproduce a Sol LeWitt geometric wall drawing. The gallery is currently exhibiting a retrospective of the artist's work during the last 25 years.

The DMS wall drawing isn't a copy of a work currently on display at the Addison. It's an exact replica of one of the two LeWitt drawings owned by the Addison.

Because the gallery owns the black-and-white drawing it can loan it out or authorize duplications of it, said Andrea Meyers, the education outreach coordinator at the Addison.

The project was organized by Ms. Meyers and Marcia Harol, chairwoman of Doherty's math department.

After visiting the Addison and seeing the LeWitt wall drawings, Ms. Harol approached Ms. Meyers earlier this year about doing a collaborative project. Ms. Harol "really liked the geometric qualities of the wall drawings and shapes and spacing," said Ms. Meyers, who supervised the students during the three-week period.

The students used art and mathematical techniques to complete the project. The first step was to paint the concrete wall black.

"That took a little longer than we planned," said Ms. Meyers.

It took three coats of latex paint to cover it. The next step was drawing a grid on the wall that the students then used as a reference to copy the original drawing.

The students made 192, 12-inch boxes. They used rulers to draw the lines straight and used homemade compasses made out of white crayons attached to ropes to draw the curved lines, said Ms. Meyers.

Sylvester Humaj, one of the students who worked on the drawing, said he enjoyed spending his free time copying the wall drawing rather than just "hanging out" after school.

"You go downtown and there's nothing to do. You get there and you say to yourself, 'OK, what do I do now?' It's boring."

"I really like art and I think this is fun," said Sylvester.

About 10 students worked in 90-minute shifts each day after school for three weeks to complete the drawing. It will remain on the wall for the rest of this school year and into the next, said Principal Floyd McManus.

"It looks great. It's something the whole school can be proud of," he said.

Sylvester Humaj, Yoko Minagawa, Shrim Bathey and Shunda Graham work on the wall drawing at Doherty Middle School, with supervision by PA's Andrea Meyers.

Peter Chlebowski, Melvin A. Urena and Oscar S. Rivera, three students from Andover, are shown a few days before their graduation.

Three Andover students graduate from the Greater Lawrence Technical School

By Allyson Bates

Peter Chlebowski, 136 North St., graduated Friday, June 4, from Greater Lawrence Technical School after completing four years in the carpentry shop.

Also graduating from Greater Lawrence Technical School are two other Andover residents, Melvin A. Urena and Oscar S. Rivera.

Mr. Chlebowski, winner of the Massachusetts Vocational Association Award and the Servistar All America Vocational Student Award, was also recognized as an outstanding senior in carpentry, and was awarded $250 and a variety of tools from Doyle Lumber Co.

Mr. Chlebowski, a three-year member of the National Honor Society and the yearbook committee, will work with his father, a general contractor, after graduation.

"I'm really going to miss school," Mr. Chlebowski explained. "The concentrated teaching for each student helps students learn a lot about their field. The teachers taught us about life and I learned every aspect of carpentry."

Melvin A. Urena, 4 Ridge St., graduated with a 3.127 grade point average in the Data Processing Department. Mr. Urena moved to New Jersey after graduation.

AHS seniors go on safari

"There were always kids at the manicurist waiting to get their nails done."

A non-stop food buffet, donated from local merchants, included vegetable and fruit plates, pizza, huge subs, Chinese food, a "safari" style cake, candy, frozen yogurt, and an early morning breakfast. Leftovers were donated to Lazarus House in Lawrence.

Planning for the '93 Senior Safari began last spring, as parents talked to area high schools and visited similar programs in Winchester, Arlington and North Reading.

"After speaking to my friends in Arlington, I decided to go see one last June," said Judy Reghitto of 17 High Plain Road. "I also took six students to Winchester and they loved the idea."

Principal Tim Thomas commented, "The reason this event, over other attempts in the past, was a success is because parents, like Judy Reghitto and Jane Batts, have been involved since day one."

At least 100 parents volunteered to help with three months of intense publicity and fund-raising, earning $13,000, endless hours of decorations, 25 hours of set up, and chaperoning from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

"Each committee devoted so much time to make this work," Mrs. Reghitto explained. "Fund-raising began in November and decorations worked consistently every night since May." Tiny tidbits of events were released to the students to pique their interest, and a gorilla helped sell tickets in the cafeteria.

Nurses alternated shifts and a doctor was on call all night.

"So many generous people contributed and it was so enjoyable to see parents care about making this night fun for the seniors," said Vicki Lastrina, 2 Penobscot Way.

The theme surrounding Monday's bash was "It takes a village to raise a child." Jane Batts, 16 Argyle Road, said, "It is the community coming together on the part of the kids. Someday the kids will return and give back to the community. But we must show them now that the community really does care."

Seniors wrote letters to fellow classmates, collected photos, and placed special memorabilia in their own time capsule, to preserve fond memories of their four years at Andover High.

Festivities ended as the sun began to rise. While Mrs. Batts toasted "good luck and happiness in all you do" to the 1993 AHS class, each member sat in a circle singing "(That's What) Friends Are For."

Local PA students distinguish themselves in scholarship, arts, sports and community service

By Alix Driscoll

Of the 39 local students who graduated Sunday on Andover Hill there is much talent in the academic disciplines, athletics, creative arts and service to others.

Triple-sport athlete Gus Quattlebaum of Phillips Academy earned the Ray Tippet Award for loyalty, courage and modesty. For the past two years, Mr. Quattlebaum played varsity soccer, basketball and baseball. This season he was the leading scorer on the soccer team with 10 goals and eight assists.

As a pitcher he led Phillips Academy men's baseball to first place in the league and was selected for the league's All-Star Team. His batting average of .444 was his team's highest. Next year Mr. Quattlebaum will go to Davidson College, which has Division I baseball.

Beth Canterbury of Old South Lane earned special distinction for talent in music and theater. She held the lead in Bernstein's Candide and Sondheim's Into the Woods, and directed the spring production of Workings.

Ms. Canterbury, a soprano, performed with the Cantata Choir on its spring tour of Italy and gave her senior recital in May. She founded the singing ensemble Bacchanalia and was co-president of a cappella group 8 'n' 1. At Kenyon College in Ohio she will major in both English and vocal performance.

Stacie Ringleb of Sweetbriar Lane earned the Martin Luther King Jr. Award for community service. She is presently working with the H.O.M.E. program in Orland, Maine, building houses for homeless people.

Local Phillips Academy students distinguish themselves

She was one of the leaders of community service in her senior year. "Her greatest friend is a young woman, Michelle Drouin. Stacie worked with Michelle at ARC, Camp Stepping Stone and Project Star," said Mary Minard, coordinator of the Community Service program at Phillips Academy.

Ms. Ringleb has also been involved in the Easter Seals Swimming program and won the Chamber of Commerce award for community service. A student of Russian, she assisted with the weekly teas for Russian emigres in the area. She will study biomedical engineering at Case Western Reserve

Presidential National Merit Scholarship winner Michael Tung of Spartan Way will be heading to George Washington University, where he will study biology in preparation for a medical career. While at Phillips Academy he was a leader in the Asian Society and a community service volunteer with the ARC program. Mr. Tung was elected to the Cum Laude Society for high academic achievement.

Rejji Hayes of Florence Street was a four-year starter on the varsity soccer team and captained the team this year to a record of 13 wins with one loss and two ties. This season he scored two goals and tallied eight assists. Rejji was selected the Most Valuable Player.

Graduation time is here. Send your college student's news to: On Campus, in the Townsman.

According to varsity soccer coach, William W. Scott, Rejji was on the Massachusetts All-State Team prep school division. He studied Russian for four years and will attend Amherst with plans for pre-law.

The N. Penrose

Hallowell theater award was earned by Morgan Pecelli of Bailey Road. She distinguished herself as a founding director of the new repertory company P.A.R.T. and produced and directed Grasshopper Night for Parents Weekend. In addition, Ms. Pecelli was the assistant director of the demanding play House of Bernarda Alba. She played on the undefeated varsity girls lacrosse team that won AHS' tournament and will study at Johns Hopkins University this fall.

A gem of a show next weekend

For three decades, the North Shore Rock and Mineral Club has been "rocking New England" with its annual Gem & Mineral Show.

The show will be held at Masconomet Regional School in Topsfield (Endicott Road Exit, Route 95) Saturday, June 19, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, June 20, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. This year marks the 30th year the show has been presented by the North Shore Club to promote interest in the hobby of rocks and minerals.

Dealers throughout the country display and sell a varied selection of merchandise that includes unique mineral and crystal specimens collected all over the world; rare and unusual gemstones, cut and uncut; carved ivory and jade; fossils; lapidary (gem cutting) equipment; collecting tools; jewelry mounting and other jewelry making supplies, and more. A highlight of the show will be the extensive collection of jewelry ranging from costume items to fine pieces set with rare and precious gems.

There's something to suit every pocket-book. For 25 cents, a youngster can take a turn at "Spin-a-Gem," a game of chance run by the Pebble Pups, the club's junior contingent. The game guarantees a winner at every spin of the wheel. Prizes range from a pyrite sun or other mineral specimen to a carved, soapstone figure. Tumbled stones, gemstone novelties, or inexpensive fossils can also be had at a price to suit a child's budget.

For a nominal sum, show-goers can choose a geode and have it cut in half, sometimes to reveal a dazzling cluster of amethyst or other crystals. Even the geodes that are solid inside produce interesting patterns that, when polished, make attractive ornaments for use as bookends or paperweights.

Patrons can choose from rare fossils dating to prehistoric times; mineral specimens for the novice or serious collector; exquisitely carved gemstone figurines, art objects, and

Learn the 'Cajun two-step' at Crossroads

Cajun and Zydeco music bring an end to the Crossroads Coffeehouse season as the Crawdad Wranglers present a dance and concert Saturday, June 12. An introductory lesson in the Cajun two-step will start the evening.

The coffeehouse is held in the North Parish Church of North Andover at the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Great Pond Roads. The concert begins at 8 p.m.; doors open at 7:15 p.m. Admission is $7 at the door. Home-baked refreshments and gourmet coffees and teas will be available before the concert and during intermission.

tions at the museum's current home limit public access to this collection.

Mr. Rivard will explain how the museum's collection has expanded during the last 30 years, to include objects ranging from an 18th-century Dutch-style loom to a 20th-century Axminster carpet loom. He will also discuss plans to move the collection to the museum's new home in Lowell.

Minkkinen knighted in Finland

Arno Minkkinen, associate professor of photography in the College of Fine Arts at UMass Lowell, was recently awarded the First Class Lion Medal of Knighthood by the president of the Republic of Finland on the occasion of the sesquicentennial of Finnish photography and 75 years of Finnish independence, earlier this year.

This honor was bestowed upon Prof. Minkkinen for his highly-regarded art photography in a career that has spanned 20 years. Mr. Minkkinen was born in Finland and moved to the United States when he was 6. He returns annually to Finland to teach photography, exhibit his work and take new pictures.

Mr. Minkkinen will present an exhibition of American and French photography at the Retretti Art Center in Punkaharju, Finland, this summer as a guest curator for the museum. The exhibition, titled "Elegant Intimacy," is devoted to the theme of the extended portrait, particularly of family members and loved ones who have allowed themselves to be photographed over and over again.

A book will be produced for the exhibition by Mr. Minkkinen and published by the museum. The Minkkinen family - Arno, Sandra and Daniel - will be in Finland for opening festivities. They plan to visit St. Petersburg, just a train ride over the border from where the Retretti Art Center is located.

Second annual South Church Steeple Chase road race and fun walk is set for June 19

The second annual South Church Steeple Chase road race and fun walk is shaping up to be an even bigger event than last year. On Saturday, June 19, at 8:30 a.m., more than 200 runners and walkers will leave the starting line in front of South Church and begin the 5-kilometer trek that will take them around Spring Grove Cemetery and back to the church. The first 200 entrants will receive a South Church Steeple Chase T-shirt and all participants will take part in a breakfast of pancakes, juice, coffee and yogurt after the race.

Trophies will be presented to the overall first, second and third-place finishers in the male and female categories, plus the first two finishers in the age groups 10 and under, 11-13, 14-17, 18-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59 and over 60. As a special feature this year, there are several age groupings for younger participants. Organizers hope more young people under 17 will give this "manageable distance" a try.

Because it is Father's Day weekend, there will be trophies for the top father-son and the father-daughter combined time winners.

Anyone who shows up at South Church before 8:15 a.m. on race day may enter. The entry fee is $10 for those who register by Tuesday, June 15; $12 for those who sign up the day of the race. The fee includes the T-shirt (for the first 200 entrants) and the breakfast. Entry forms may be obtained at South Church or from race director Bob MacDougall, 475-1652.

Woodworth

Motors will provide the T-shirts, trophies and police coverage and Abbot Labs will provide the electronic timing service.

All entry fees will be put into the fund for raising the South Church Steeple, an historic landmark in Andover for more than 130 years.

Christian Science lecturer from South Africa to speak Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Old Town Hall

Dorothy
Maubane

Growing up under the oppression of apartheid in South Africa, Christian Science lecturer Dorothy Maubane came to rely on her study of the Bible for comfort and hope. She speaks of dealing with persecution and injustice through prayer, in lectures in Andover and Lawrence, sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Andover.

In her first lecture, "What prayer can do in times of change," she draws on her experience in the full-time healing ministry of Christian Science to explain how prayer brings healing and peace to situations such as the loss of a job, divorce, or illness. The lecture will be held in Old Town Hall, 20 Main St., Friday, June 11, at 7:30 p.m.

She will speak on Tuesday, June 15, at the Lawrence Public Library at 7:30 p.m.

In a lecture entitled "A new horizon," she discusses how the search for a meaningful and satisfying life is ultimately a spiritual search.

She illustrates this with first-hand accounts of the healing of smoking and drinking habits, illness, and the reversal of unjust legislation, through prayer.

Both lectures are free and open to the public. Child care will be available.

Rep. Coon to score in bingo

Senior citizen bingo fans scored big during the House budget debate recently.

"We succeeded in adding an outside section to the budget that would help save the bingo crisis at the Andover Senior Center," said Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover.

"It is a shame that the Lottery Commission had to come down so hard on the seniors. I know how important bingo is to them as a recreational activity. I have seen some folks in Andover show up as early as 10 a.m. to play at 1 p.m.," said Rep. Coon.

The Senior Center is in violation of present state legal limits by charging above the 25-cent-per-card limit and having cash prizes in excess of $5. The bingo amendment increases the limits to $5 per card and awards up to $100 in prize money per game.

"I hope this amendment is signed into law so that my seniors can go back to their bingo without being harassed by state government," said Rep. Coon. The budget now goes to the Senate where it will be debated again in a few weeks.

Health-care forum is set for this Saturday

The commissioner of the state Department of Public Health will be the keynote speaker at a conference on national health care reform sponsored by U.S. Rep. Martin T. Meehan Saturday, June 12, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Dr. David H. Mulligan, who has worked at the state DPH for 13 years, will address the event at Northern Essex Community College in downtown Lawrence.

The session marks the second in a series of health-care forums sponsored by Mr. Meehan in the Fifth District. He kicked off the series at Acton Town Hall and has set the last forum for Monday, June 14, at the University of Massachusetts at Lowell from 7 to 10 p.m.

All forums are open to the public. Panels of professionals will present their views and answer questions from the audience.

Panelists at the Lawrence forum include Joseph McManus, president and CEO, Lawrence General Hospital; William Lane, president and CEO, Holy Family Medical Center; Edie Mas, executive director, Greater Lawrence Family Health Center; Dr. Brian Callahan, Essex North Medical Society; Rosanne DiStefano, executive director, Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley; George Ellison, The New England; and Joseph Bevilacqua, Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce.

For more information, call Mr. Meehan's local office at 681-6200.

Methuen's Al Torrissi challenges area teens

The Explorers program is run by Officer Torrissi through the Methuen Police Department, but is open to teens from all over the Merrimack Valley. It currently has 21 members and another 20 ready to join, if Officer Torrissi can get more help, and more money, for the program.

"I'm trying to build it up to 40 to 45 right now," Officer Torrissi said last week. "I don't have the money to buy uniforms for the 20 more kids who want to join."

Each Explorer's uniform costs $150, which the program pays for. Each explorer must spend an additional $60 for pants and shirts to go with the uniform. The uniforms and gear, including a badge, are nearly the same as actual police uniforms.

"They don't have a gun belt, of course," Officer Torrissi said.

The cadets are trained in four phases, spending a week every summer at Westover Air Force Base in western Massachusetts for a kind of boot camp. They are trained in first aid, swimming, CPR and other lifesaving skills. As they get older and licensed, they drive cruisers and actually work eight-hour shifts with police.

During the final phase, which is for the 19- and 20-year-old cadets, the physical and mental testing at Westover is just as it would be at the state police academy, according to Officer Torrissi.

Five current Methuen officers were once Explorers and a total of 22 Explorers have gone on to be police officers. Two recent graduates — they turned 21 — joined Methuen's auxiliary police.

What makes it work

Two things make Methuen's Police Explorers group happen for teens: the Boy Scouts of America and Officer Torrissi, or "Officer Al," as he's known around town.

The Scouts make it happen because members are covered for liability by the Boy Scouts of America. Each Explorer pays $8 annual dues to the Scouts. Liability expense otherwise can be an insurmountable hurdle for volunteer non-profit groups, and for that matter, even for for-profit group activities.

And the program depends on Officer Torrissi, a Methuen patrolman for 18 years and the town's safety officer for the past eight years, because he's committed to it.

"You have to want to do it. I put in a lot of my own time for it," Officer Torrissi said.

The Explorers is funded mostly through donations and proceeds from fund-raisers. It used to receive $500 annually from the police budget, but that was cut two years ago.

"The last couple years I haven't had anything. That's why I'm going out begging," Officer Torrissi said.

His begging includes reaping proceeds from bean suppers, car washes and other community events. Money is the biggest problem in keeping alive the Explorers, or any program like it, Officer Torrissi said.

The Explorers program was started in 1978 by Warren Archibald and Bruce MacDougall, who is now acting police chief in Methuen. Chief MacDougall was very involved in the Boy Scouts and that's how the Boy Scouts of America was involved.

Why join?

The Methuen Police Explorers program is very strict. Any misuse of the group's equipment or badge, even leaving their hat in the back window of their car, is reason enough to throw an Explorer out of the program. Doing poorly in school is another way a cadet can be pulled out of the program.

Explorers are not paid, and the greatest impetus for members to stay involved is that it is a good way to become a police officer, Officer Torrissi said.

Mr. Torrissi said he is willing to talk with any group of people who are thinking of starting an Explorers group. Explorer groups are not only involved in police training, but also have scuba diving groups and participate in a variety of other areas. Some in Andover have talked about having a forestry group, which would fit right in, Officer Torrissi said.

Other programs

Officer Torrissi also runs a number of other safety programs in the Methuen schools, including a school bus evacuation program, finger printing and foot printing of children, gun safety and much more.

"That's my job, mainly just to work with the kids of Methuen," Officer Torrissi said.

He said cutting funding for a safety officer from the budget, which Andover did two years ago, was a "wrong move."

"Kids need someone to steer them when they're young," Officer Torrissi said. "They need a safety officer as far as I'm concerned. Every police department (does)."

Methuen's Police Explorers is a group of teens, 14 to 20 years old, interested in law enforcement and who are trained in every phase of policing by real police using real equipment. Here, Officer Al Torrissi shows some of the Explorers' uniform.

He also is involved in organizing drug- and alcohol-free dances at the high school for seventh- and eighth-grade students, and he is a board member of a group trying to build a youth center in Methuen, which he said they hope will be like North Andover's Red Barn.

The effort on the center involves a wide variety of people in Methuen including city counselors, school administrators, and even legislators, like state Rep. Larry Giordano, D-Methuen. But so far all they've accomplished is a lot of talk, according to Officer Torrissi.

"We've got a lot of good ideas, but to put them into realities is another thing," he said.

Some funds have been raised, but nowhere near the $1 million Officer Torrissi said would be needed to build a new building. So they are looking for an existing building that someone is willing to give to the town or that the town can buy inexpensively.

Mike Marcoux knows teen-agers

By Don Staruk

Some teens say Mike Marcoux, half-time guidance counselor and half-time drug and alcohol counselor at Andover High School, is an adult they can talk with and relate to. Others say he knows too much about what's going on inside their heads or about them personally, and feel he invades their privacy. During an interview in his office, both those descriptions seemed accurate.

One student knocked on his door and asked if Mr. Marcoux had wanted to see him. He was told yes, but could he come back third period. The student hesitated and Mr. Marcoux said, you have a free period then don't you? Again the student hesitated.

You do have a free period then, I know your schedule, I'll see you third period, Mr. Marcoux said, and the student went on his way.

All through the interview, kids were stopping in, mostly seniors buying tickets for the Senior Brunch. But all had a smile, were pleasant and seemed at ease with Mr. Marcoux.

In addition to his counselor duties, Mr. Marcoux is student government adviser, senior class co-adviser and GUTS (Growing Up Taking a Stand) adviser at the high school. He has a bachelor's degree in psychology and education from Merrimack College and a master's degree in counseling psychology from Tufts University. He was employed eight years as a part-time staff psychologist at Lawrence General Hospital's Mental Health Center, working in crisis counseling and substance abuse.

He started as a guidance counselor in 1982 at the middle-school level and followed his first class, the class of 1984, to the high school. Spending five years with those kids was extra special partly because it was his first class and partly because he was still in his 20s himself, he said.

"It was like having 300 brothers and sisters," Mr. Marcoux said.

Boredom, loneliness and stress

The concerns brought out by students in the first Townsmen discussion with teens two weeks ago was "pretty reflective as a whole" of what Mr. Marcoux deals with, he said. He sees three problems with the kids -

'I don't see peer pressure. I see self-pressure. I see kids trying to fit in.'

Mike Marcoux, of the Andover High School counseling dept.

Mike Marcoux in his office in the guidance department at Andover High School.

boredom, loneliness and trying to deal with today's stress - and how they cope with these issues.

"I don't see peer pressure. I see self-pressure. I see kids trying to fit in," he said.

The pressure isn't from outside to do drugs or drink, but internal, he said.

"Sometimes it's hard to stand on your own."

He blames the problems on the lack of an extended family, which is partly due to mobility, in terms of people being all over the country.

"That whole sense of involvement and family belonging is dwindling," he said.

Churches don't have backing and the family has fallen apart, he said.

"The last social institution that's left is the schools."

There are a lot of kids who are reaching out who want to be liked and loved, according to Mr. Marcoux.

"There are an awful lot of kids out there who feel very lonely, even in a crowd," he said.

"I think kids are looking for something. Something is lacking in their life. A sense of belonging, a sense of group."

In some cities, not necessarily Andover, gangs thrive because they provide that sense of belonging and family, Mr. Marcoux said.

Pressure to succeed

Sometimes kids are under too much pressure to succeed, whether it's self-instilled or from parents or other sources, he said.

Ninety percent of kids from Andover High School go on to college.

"You want them to do their best," Mr. Marcoux said, but there are limits.

"We have kids in eighth and ninth grade who are worried about their rank."

Colleges are looking for well-rounded individuals, but some kids put pressure on themselves to succeed in all areas.

"I think the sense at 15 or 16 is, 'My life is doomed. I'm not going to get into college.'"

"Drugs and alcohol, that certainly has increased in my opinion, as it has all across the country."

Alcohol and marijuana use has increased as has crack cocaine, LSD and "shrooms," (hallucinogenic mushrooms), he said. But again, it's a lot of the same kids who are using the stuff, Mr. Marcoux said.

He sees students as having five alternatives: Choose to drink, choose to drug, choose to drink and drug, choose to do neither but in a quiet way, or go the way of kids in GUTS, take a very positive public stand that they do not drink or drug.

It's time to start giving reinforcement for making the right decision, he said. GUTS is an alliance for all the pockets of kids who are not using.

It's all voluntary, "positive peer pressure," he said.

Pull together

Mr. Marcoux said he was always trying to pull the kids in the class of '93 together as a class and that they came together very well right from the beginning and in the end.

Last week 269 students and 16 teachers spent a day at Eastover resort in Lenox where they played games all day and danced half the night. The next night they went to a Red Sox game and nearly every class member attended. Then they had a lobster

'Coffee House is not the cause of problems'

It faces the same issues as school, town By Don Staruk

Teens smoke cigarettes and some might even make a drug connection at the R&R Coffee House on School Street, but neither of those facts is unique to the coffee house and both are also true of the high school or The Park, according to Walter Pitts, R&R owner.

"It's not just because this place is here that drugs exist," Mr. Pitts said this week.

Drugs were being used elsewhere before the coffee house opened and still are, he said. Just like the High School or the town, the coffee house is a small piece of society and experiences the same problems to some degree.

But Mr. Pitts took offense to a statement made by teens in the Townsmen's Andover for Teens articles that said kids are going to the R&R to find drugs.

"You can find them anywhere," he said.

Before it was The Park and the kids say, and (the drug dealers) say, they still sell drugs in school, according to Mr. Pitts.

"They're still doing it at The Park. They're still doing it at the High School. We know who they are. The police know which ones they are."

There are four kids who deal drugs in town who Mr. Pitts is aware of. They do frequent the coffee house but there isn't anything he can do about it as long as they don't do anything on the premises, Mr. Pitts said. And they don't do it on the premises because they don't want to be thrown out, he said. And Mr. Pitts said he talked to a police officer last week about the problem and was told that unless police catch dealers in the act, there's not much they can do either.

But Mr. Pitts said he does everything he can to be sure drug activity does not take place at the R&R.

Walter Pitts

Cigarettes

The R&R received many complaints from parents when it first opened last February, mostly about kids hanging out, playing cards and smoking cigarettes.

"We still have the same problem with parents thinking we give the kids cigarettes," he said.

The R&R doesn't give kids cigarettes and doesn't even sell cigarettes. The parents' problem should be with the place that sells the kids the cigarettes, not the R&R, Mr. Pitts said.

"If this place didn't exist, they'd still smoke. They'd smoke somewhere else and (parents) just couldn't see it."

Some parents still come to the coffee house in a rage and yank their kids out, he said. "They can't seem to keep them out of here."

But others who stop in to pick up kids or drop them off "seem to like the place," he said. And the kids do, too.

The Rev. Dr. Cal Mutti, senior pastor at South Church, summed up the coffee house when he compared what kids are looking for to Cheers, "a place where everybody knows your name," according to Mr. Pitts.

"This is it."

Other issues

Mr. Pitts also had a problem with a statement at least one student made, that there was a racial problem at the R&R. He said that is not true. According to the feedback he had received, only one of the teens who took part in the Townsmen's panel discussion was a regular at the coffee house and one or two others were occasional visitors to the establishment. "Eleven honor-roll" students did not fairly represent the views of his customers, Mr. Pitts said.

Police have received a number of complaints regarding teens hanging out on, or around, the railroad tracks in back of the R&R. He and the other employees of the coffee house try to keep the kids on the back patio, but they often migrate toward the open space in Dundee Park, Mr. Pitts said. But any trouble caused out in back causes trouble for the R&R, and Mr. Pitts treats it the same as trouble inside, with expulsions from the premises.

"What I think is some kid is going to get run over right there," Mr. Pitts said, pointing instead to the section of School Street running in front of the coffee house. "I've seen people take that corner sideways."

Traffic moves too fast, he said. And one car load of kids has been driving by on a regular basis and throwing objects at patrons out in front of the coffee house. No one has been hurt yet, and Mr. Pitts said he is more worried about the kids doing the throwing if the other kids catch them than he is about the eggs or other articles being thrown.

The coffee house has had some problems with a few kids, but those incidents are happening less and less, Mr. Pitts said.

"We've weeded out a lot of the trouble-makers and gotten rid of them."

When someone starts a fight, throws trash around or causes any kind of trouble, he or she risks being kicked out for anywhere from a week to a month or more.

"We've had kids that have been thrown out for a month, two months, and they still come back," and in most cases with more respect, Mr. Pitts said.

"Either they're gone or they've gained respect," said Carmella Sapienza, Mr. Pitts' sister and an employee.

Average age 20-28

Mr. Pitts said the coffee house is doing well in a business sense.

"We can't complain."

He said the average age of the patrons there is 20-28 years old most of the time. The school kids are there mostly in the afternoon, and if they are there in the evening, they are mostly gone by 8-8:30 p.m. The college kids are coming back from school now and they are looking for a place like the R&R to have a coffee and play a game.

"We still get a pretty good variety of kids in here," Mr. Pitts said.

They do get the honor-roll types as well as the sports-players and others. They also have a lot of "characters," some older adults who have become regulars. There might be a "crunchy," described as an '80s hippie," playing cards with a tougher looking character in a black leather jacket.

"It's weird, because everybody pretty much gets along," Ms. Sapienza said.

The popular games are constantly changing. The card games of 45s and rummy were popular at first, then chess was and still is big, and most recently cribbage has become popular.

"There are about 12 kids who are dying to learn to play bridge," Mr. Pitts said.

If someone would come down to give lessons it would be great, he said.

AHS's Mike Marcoux knows teen-agers

clambake on Friday in York, Maine.

"I'm big on this as a community within a community," he said of the high school.

Mr. Marcoux has ordered "AHS Pride" pins for the staff and he tries to impress upon the students that they are all together at the school and should try to get along.

"You don't have to love one another, but certainly respect one another," he said.

That's what a teen center has to do, he said. Create that same sense of respect.

Mr. Marcoux was on a committee for years trying to bring a teen center here.

"It's a good idea if it's well supervised and not taken over by one clique," he said.

Seeing all kids

Mr. Marcoux wears "a lot of hats" because he doesn't want his office to be perceived as dealing with only one type of kid or one type of problem.

One of his goals when he came here 11 years ago was to see his share of problem kids, but also to see the average "run-of-the-mill students," the B-C students who were just going along OK.

"I think it's important as a guidance counselor, as a teacher, as a mentor, that we get to see those kids."

He saw his own guidance counselor only once during high school at Central Catholic High School in Lawrence, Mr. Marcoux said.

Communication is key

Two areas Mr. Marcoux is concerned with are that kids don't have a sense that they are listened to and that they are not valued. Communication is a key, he said.

"I would like to see churches, synagogues and schools really work together and try to address family issues and teen issues. And if there's a problem in the community, we need to acknowledge that," he said.

Parents are embarrassed by a problem when they think it's unique to them and that they're alone, when actually it's often a broader problem, he said.

"I think parents feel isolated frequently," he said.

Networking would help, he said.

The kids who were at Eastover last week, after spending time outside of school with them, now see those 16 teachers as real people. Mr. Marcoux would like to see more of that happening sooner, if it could be done without losing a lot of class time.

"I think it's important to just stop and listen to kids. Kids want to be listened to right now."

As far as his knowing too much of what's going on with the kids: "I certainly don't know it all," he said.

AHS a good school

"I really see Andover High School as a good high school," Mr. Marcoux said.

It offers a lot to the students, the kids are the best and they have some of the best athletic teams in the state, he said.

"I think there are a lot of kids doing the right thing," Mr. Marcoux said.

The biggest compliment to the school is the number of alumni who come back and say thanks and say what a great experience they had at AHS, he said.

"That, to me, is one of the nicest things. That also says something about what's going on right."

North Andover is building a teen center

By Don Staruk

Andover's Department of Community Services does a great job, but this town needs a separate youth services department and teen center, just as it has a Council on Aging and senior center, according to Rick Gorman, director of North Andover's Youth Services Department.

Mr. Gorman was hired five years ago as North Andover's first youth services director. The program actually started nine years ago when Dave Rand, then juvenile officer at the police department, told the town's Board of Trade that the town needed a youth services department. Carrie Crouch, then president of the Board of Trade, worked with Officer Rand for four years to raise money to fund a youth coordinator position.

In the end, the Department of Social Services kicked in $15,000 to fund the position for one year if the town matched it, which it did with private funds, and Mr. Gorman was hired. At the end of that first year, the proposal for town funding to continue the program had to go to town meeting for approval. Residents approved it with a standing ovation and North Andover Youth Services was created as a department of the town. NAYS now has a $70,000 annual budget, which pays Mr. Gorman's salary, that of an assistant and some expenses. Another approximately $20,000 is raised from grants and fund raisers.

Mr. Gorman, who has a bachelor's degree in government and sociology from Suffolk University and a master's degree in community social psychology from UMass Lowell, worked one year in the Department of Mental Health and three years with the Department of Social Services before taking the North Andover job.

When NAYS began, it targeted just the "bad kids in town," kids who were having trouble with drugs or school, Mr. Gorman said. It offered mostly social programs, like dances in the middle school, support programs such as Alateen, and a court diversion program. Now, five years later, NAYS boasts 30 programs for all kids.

Teen center

The Red Barn, at 33 Johnson St., contrary to what many people believe, is not a youth facility but a community center.

"We're building a youth facility, hopefully within three years," Mr. Gorman said. "We're hoping to get a good chunk of the money through grants."

He hopes to garner about 60 percent of the needed funds from grants and fund raising, "then hit the town for the last 40 percent."

Right now, NAYS uses school and library facilities as well as the Red Barn and other public buildings for its programs and events. It also has a ropes course in the town forest.

Mr. Gorman said a teen center would allow the department to serve a lot more kids, that it would give kids a place to hang out even when they

North Andover's programs

North Andover Youth Services programs are almost all exclusively for North Andover residents. The programs include:

- Community service opportunities;
- Teen Talk, a discussion group for middle-school-aged kids;
- Tutoring for middle and high school students;
- Alateen, alcohol abuse support group;
- A boxing program;
- Grogan's Drop-in center;

• Teenco, a teen-run company that produces teen entertainment and community service;

- The Clothes Closet, used kids' clothes, infant to teen;
- Safe Rides program, providing rides for teens and positive peer role models who have pledged abstinence from illegal substances, comparable to Andover High School's new GUTS program.
- Scared Straight, Peer Leadership, Survivor's Group, and many other programs and outreach services.

weren't there for a specific program. Right now, kids come and hang out in his office, which can be difficult when he is trying to have a meeting or get other work done.

"We've serviced close to 2,000 kids," Mr. Gorman said. "On a regular basis, we'll see about 120 kids a week - 120 to 150."

The social events, such as dances, bring in the big numbers.

"We work entirely with sixth-graders through twelfth-graders."

He doesn't have the staff to work with grade school children. He hopes the teen facility will help.

"My feeling is we've got to reach out to more kids."

Mr. Gorman said there is a feeling on the part of some kids, especially the students initially targeted, that NAYS is not doing enough outreach. That may be true, he said, because NAYS is now dealing with all different types of kids. But with more staff, NAYS could service all kids, he said.

As it is, NAYS personnel are on a beeper 24 hours a day for kids who need help.

"We give it a hell of a lot more work than $70,000," Mr. Gorman said.

And even in the recent tough economic atmosphere, when many other programs were cut, NAYS was supported in the community.

"This town is pretty supportive of what we're doing here. I think we're here to stay."

Andover's needs

Mr. Gorman is more than willing to come talk to people in Andover about what he's doing there. There's no need to re-invent the wheel if Andover can use what North Andover has learned, he said.

He has talked with two Andover groups in the last five years, the first of which was interested in a teen center and providing youth services. The second wanted to know about specific programs. He never heard about anything happening from either.

He has also talked to several other communities, many of which, like Newburyport, have incorporated parts of what North Andover has into their own programs.

He thinks Andover has a great Department of Community Services, but that the town needs a separate youth services department, just as it has a separate department and facility for seniors.

The way to do that is to put together a committee of parents, students, and representatives from the school, police, and other town departments, as well as business.

"Whatever you plan, include students in whatever you're deciding," Mr. Gorman said. "If they have some ownership of this type of thing, you'll have a lot less problems down the line."

During the interview for his job, several adults asked Mr. Gorman a lot of "very nice questions," but it was the students who asked the most pertinent ones, he said.

When North Andover was having trouble with skate boarders downtown a few years ago, Marilyn Ichton, owner of Catch the Wave skateboard shop, at 203 Pleasant St., and Mr. Gorman talked with the kids about raising funds for a skateboard park. The kids went to the neighbors and selectmen and raised $5,000, which paid for resurfacing an area at Applin Playground on Clarendon Street, and built ramps to go with it.

A part of the town insurance policy had to be revised to cover the added liability, and signs saying that safety gear had to be worn at the park were posted, "but it wasn't a major issue," according to Mr. Gorman.

Those kids who started it are probably in college now and probably don't even use skateboards anymore, but they left a nice mark, he said.

NAYS' ropes course in the town forest is going through an upgrade right now. It is being accredited by Project Adventure and the insurance liability coverage is being rewritten, but Mr. Gorman hopes to have it available later this summer.

And again, he would be more than happy to show these facilities to any Andover groups interested in seeing them or trying them out.

Andover needs a teen center, he said, just a place to play a few games and have some snacks. And it can be staffed with college interns.

"It doesn't have to be a million-dollar facility," he said.

Program needs

As for his own program needs, Mr. Gorman would like the teen center completed and a group home.

It "buns me out" when kids have to go to foster homes that in some cases aren't any better than the home they're leaving, he said.

Mr. Gorman said he could use one more staff member at NAYS, but that he has a good group of volunteers and college student interns to supplement the program.

A sense of community

Andover High School guidance counselor Mike Marcoux, interviewed for the Andover for Teens series, should have written today's editorial.

"I'm big on this as a community within a community," he said of the high school.

The world is a big a place. We all need to be members of smaller groups in which we will feel needed, loved and valued - schools, families, religious organizations, towns, clubs, businesses, more.

Mike Marcoux says in communities, people need to respect one another. "You don't have to love one another," he says, "but certainly respect one another."

Mr. Marcoux is concerned that teens don't feel the community listens to them, and they don't feel valued. That certainly is what the Townsmen's teen panel expressed in interviews.

Mr. Marcoux said, "I would like to see churches, synagogues and schools really work together and try to address family issues and teen issues. And if there's a problem in the community, we need to acknowledge that."

The problem is that people are isolated. Parents are working; kids are busy; many churches and temples are not well attended; relatives live all over the country. We agree with Mr. Marcoux: The community needs to pull together, people need to feel connected, and certainly there are signs that is happening for teens here.

Solutions sound simple: Listen to teens; help parents network and find ways to be together; and find ways for teens to feel more useful.

The story today of AHS graduate Denise Carriere, a mentally handicapped 19-year-old who has been included by the school and her classmates, is a wonderful example of community. Her classmates made Denise feel welcomed and part of the group. In turn, Denise made her classmates and teachers and administrators feel needed. That is how a good community operates.

Now, we need to figure more ways to make that happen for teen-agers.

A very special Andover High graduate

By Perry Colmore

Denise Carriere is a very special member of the class of 1993 that graduated Monday from Andover High School. Born 19 years ago to Marilyn and Joe Carriere of 78 Chandler Road, the second of three children, Denise is "mentally retarded," her mother says.

Denise is listening to this conversation, and wants to say how to describe her.

"Denise likes 'mentally handicapped,' or 'mentally delayed,'" adds Marilyn Carriere.

At Monday's AHS awards ceremony in the morning, Denise received an award from the music and drama department at AHS. Denise says she was cited for being "a very, very, very hard-worker."

If you saw Denise in the recent AHS production of Grease, she was in the chorus, and she did a fine job. Actually, she was hard to miss in the chorus numbers because she's almost six feet tall. At times she went zig, when the chorus went zag, but it was not that noticeable. Mrs. Carriere says music teacher Robert Lague obviously was aware of what was happening in the chorus, but he let it happen. "I love him for that," she said. "He gave her the opportunity to be with the other kids."

I was there, and I noticed Denise because the staff of the Townsmen has come to appreciate and care about her over the last years, since she's been a student at the high school. Reporter Don Staruk wrote about Denise a couple of years ago when she won a gold medal swimming, in the Special Olympics.

The high school has done a good job of mainstreaming Denise in as many classes as possible. She takes classes with the rest of the students in ceramics, typing, cooking and drama, and even in finance, banking and law this year, says her mother. She takes some reading and math lessons with her special needs teacher, Ann Wilde.

"The kids always treated her well," says Ms. Carriere. "I'm not going to say there weren't exceptions, but they were few and far between."

Once, a woman thought an incident between her son and Denise was funny and she told Mrs. Carriere about it, in front of some other parents.

Denise Carriere

"I'm sorry, I don't think that's funny," Mrs. Carriere remembers saying to the woman. Another parent later congratulated Mrs. Carriere for standing up to that person.

"Normally, teachers are on the ball to curb little mishaps," says Mrs. Carriere.

Mrs. Carriere has been writing a letter in her head, over and over again, trying to tell Denise's classmates and the teachers and administration at Andover High School how grateful she is for the way they treated her daughter.

"The kids have always been wonderful to her," says Mrs. Carriere. "They have accepted her and treated her like one of their own. And nobody ever fussed or complained because this special child was in any activity right along with the rest of the class."

"I feel so warm to these kids," continues Mrs. Carriere, who really can't say enough about Denise's classmates. "At the same time, they looked out for her. Whenever I was out in public, walking down the street, someone would call and say hello. They just never, never seemed to be embarrassed because she was around. I've gone to football games with her. She always found somebody to sit with."

RECYCLING

By Virginia Cole

Recycling has become a routine part of most of our lives now. Some of us do the bare minimum, others seek out new ways to get more and more out of the waste stream. Andover used to be ahead in these efforts. Now we are behind. Waste Management, our recycling contractor, picks up metal cans and plastics along with paper and glass in many areas. Cardboard is a big concern to many citizens, lumber and wood are hard to just throw away, even if we had a place to do it.

The state is pushing us all with new legislation and penalties for the relatively new category of environmental criminals. Environmental groups, such as MASSPRIG, as well as Attorney General Scott Harshbarger are supporting a bill to seize the tools environmental criminals use in destroying the environment. The funds raised by these seizures will be used to further enforce environmental regulations.

The "for instances" are interesting: raw sewage dumped into a river was stopped but the pump used could not be seized; chain saws and bulldozers used to clear wetlands illegally will be forfeited once this bill is passed; an old-tire mountain was piled in an unpermitted site; with the new legislation the money customers paid to put their tires there would have gone to the state.

This is the new thrust: Make polluters pay rather than taxpayers. An equally important trend is to make packagers pay for the extra cost of trash disposal due to overpackaging.

Recycling is now an accepted need of life, but who should pay? We all feel that eventually it will pay for itself as new products are developed from the old materials, but when is "eventually" and what happens in the meantime?

How about manufacturers being responsible for the life cycle of a product? This was an idea discussed at recent conferences of the cities' mayors. Germany does something like this. Businesses there are responsible for collecting and recycling packaging used for their product. Many are really considering, for the first time, shrinking their packaging.

The cost of recycling is going up. We need the right incentives to cut the amounts of waste produced or to force re-use.

ble education for special-needs students, the town is responsible for Denise's education until the end of her 21st year. So Denise's special needs teacher is currently negotiating on a job for Denise for next year. Right now, Denise works about 15 hours a week in the mail room at Phillips Academy.

Mrs. Carriere says having a mentally handicapped daughter has not always been easy on her two other children - David, now 21 and a 1990 AHS graduate who currently is serving in Somalia with the United Nations command unit; and 14-year-old Beth, a Doherty Middle School student who will be a freshman at AHS in the fall.

"They have taken it as well as possible," says Mrs. Carriere, who works in a doctor's office. "Some days they are protective and some days they are annoyed with her. Sometimes she has problems. She can be inappropriate and they do get embarrassed. There's a lot of emotion. There are days you just don't feel like tolerating it. It's the same like with normal children."

Mostly, Mrs. Carriere is proud. Last weekend, the family had "an enormous party" to celebrate Denise's graduation. They included many friends and family members who have followed Denise's progress over the years.

A famous pediatrician whose name most of us know well told the Carriers when Denise was new born and battling E. Coli Meningitis that she had so much brain damage that she would not function at any more than a 6-month-old level. Today, her mother says, Denise functions at about the sixth-grade level in reading and between a second- and fourth-grade level in math.

Mr. Carriere, who is an engineer with a phone company, remembers that the doctors at Children's Hospital where Denise was being treated at age 4 days, told him they were still working on his baby "because she is still salvageable."

Denise's mental handicap has caused some problems in restaurants, her mother says. "She has been taken advantage of in a restaurant," says Mrs. Carriere. "Mom watches from a distance. Mom steps in when she has to. That's the hardest part."

But Mrs. Carriere is brave. She tries to let Denise learn and grow, and not to be too protective.

"You have to give them the maximum by allowing them to do their maximum," she says. "I always try to do it. I probably am not wonderful. But I always tried to do it since she was little."

In the end, Mrs. Carriere knows her daughter has delivered a gift to her classmates at Andover High School. "The gift that she probably has given them is (to learn) that it's OK - that handicapped people aren't frightening and that they are human too. I think that's the greatest gift she's given to them - not to be afraid of handicapped people."

Principals say middle-school child hasn't changed

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover middle school principals Floyd McManus and Sam Campbell don't believe incidences of violence or cases of prejudice have increased in the town's two middle schools, as some of the teens on the Townsmen's Andover for Teens panel believe.

Dr. Campbell, principal of West Middle School for the past two years, said that when high school teens hear about stories from the middle school they hear them second, third or even fourth hand. By that time, said Dr. Campbell, the stories are blown out of proportion and in many cases they do not accurately resemble what took place.

"That's not to say that we don't have problems. We do. But not of the kind or to the extent (the older) kids say there are.

"At this age, the first things kids do (when they get home) is pick up the phone the minute they walk in the door. They call the same friends they've spent the entire day with. Usually it's to say, 'Johnny said that Bill said that Sally said.' It's a far cry from whatever really happened," said Dr. Campbell.

Mr. McManus, principal at Doherty Middle for the past two years, agrees. Earlier this year a student exploded a small stink bomb inside DMS.

Because it went off under a smoke alarm, the school had to be evacuated. The next day Mr. McManus heard from a female student's parents who thought a bomb, or dynamite, had gone off at Doherty. When Mr. McManus explained the situation, the parents were relieved.

He later talked with the girl and asked her what she had heard. She told Mr. McManus that she thought an explosive device perhaps 12-inches long had gone off.

"When I showed her the stink bomb (which he indicated was less than a thumb and index finger's span) she said, 'Was that all?'"

Dr. Campbell said he was "surprised" when he heard that some of the teens on the Townsmen's discussion panel believe that Middle School kids are acting out more than high school kids, are having more sexual encounters than middle-school kids used to have, and are more racially intolerant.

Dr. Campbell said that during his two years at WMS there has not been one report of a student smoking any substance on school grounds.

"The only problem we've had is one kid who had a can of beer in his bookbag," he said.

Both principals say there have not been any unusual or growing numbers of fist fights at their schools.

"At (the middle school) level, kids are more likely to get injured running in the hall or horsing around with friends" (than in fist fights), said Mr. McManus.

Both say there are cases when students bully other students. And both believe that the victims of the aggression are truly scared.

"I have told my students and staff that if anything is interfering with education that they can come to me," said Dr. Campbell.

Teen-agers "have the gift of gab," said Mr. McManus, and can be very cruel to one another. Both said they have open-door policies and that students and staff frequently speak to them about bullying in the schools and other issues.

What are the problems?

The biggest problems for middle-school age teens are the day-to-day relationship conflicts they have with their friends, the principals say. Each principal has been involved in middle school education for more than 20 years. Mr. McManus was a teacher and administrator in Newton before coming to Andover, and Dr. Campbell was a teacher and administrator in Virginia.

"There are three reasons (middle school) kids come to school - friends, friends and friends. Their peer relationships are the most important things on their minds," said Dr. Campbell.

Teen-agers today go through the same physical, emotional and social changes that they did 20 or 30 years ago, said Dr. Campbell. They are in the process of questioning who they are and where they fit in. They no longer want to be associated with grammar-school students, but neither are they ready to take on adult roles, agreed Mr. McManus.

He believes two of the biggest differences today is that drugs and alcohol use among teens is more prevalent, and there is less adult supervision of teens' free time because there are more single-family and dual-income homes, Mr. McManus said.

"The media, especially TV and the music industry, expose teens to such a plethora of impressions - sexual situations, violence - I sometimes wonder if they know what's real," said Dr. Campbell.

The availability of R-rated movies on cable TV and in rental stores sends teens mixed messages about violence and sexuality, said Mr. McManus.

Both agree that teens are constantly testing the boundaries in their lives. The principals believe it is up to parents and educators to set acceptable standards of behavior for teens in and responded had to say.

Ken Gropper, 51, of 32 Farrwood Drive, has a daughter at Doherty Middle School and a son at Bancroft School, and is a former school building committee member, both recently and in the early 1980s:

"At the age of 51, it's absolutely incredible but they're essentially the same concerns and complaints that we as teen-agers had 35 years ago." And they're the same complaints from adults.

"It's amazing that we haven't learned from each other." Some of the particulars have changed, like it wasn't cocaine and pot that was the big fear then, it was heroin.

"Sex has always been a concern, but guess what folks, it's been going on a lot longer than that," said Mr. Gropper.

We talk and we do nothing about the problems, he said. If we did, the complaints wouldn't be the same.

"We seem to set up committees and we mediate it to death."

If parents instilled in their children basic values - moral, ethical, whatever - we wouldn't be concerned when they gather in groups. We wouldn't worry about sex and drugs.

"Unfortunately, most parents are apathetic."

Blame it on a bad economy, on liberalism of the female gender or whatever, we look at schools and they've become "baby-sitting institutions."

"Only the kids suffer."

Industry hollers about what poorly trained kids we are raising and sending them, but they watch the bottom line when it comes to kicking in, Mr. Gropper said.

Unless we solve the problems, they'll be the same in 35 years.

Regarding more respect for the kids: As long as they behave in a responsible manner they deserve respect.

The town needs a teen center, he believes.

"They need somewhere to go" if we don't want them on the streets or drinking at home and the police coming in.

They don't want to be force fed religion or anything else and they shouldn't be.

Regarding counseling: "The kids say that the kids who really need the help won't get it and they're right." The kids who need it the most, a) - don't recognize it, or b) - they don't know how to go get it and are embarrassed, said Mr. Gropper.

Getting back to kids having sex: "It's been going on for centuries and I don't know why anybody thinks it's going to change."

Even with AIDS out there kids are having unprotected sex. But parents in

This woman knows what makes teens tick

'Andover is not a movie set'

By Alix Driscoll

When the Townsmen first convened a panel of local teen-agers for its Andover for Teens series, one panelist spoke enthusiastically about the teen group at Christ Episcopal Church on Central Street. That led to Virginia Tyler, and Pat and David Reese, all of whom try to develop a process of trust in teens by listening to them. Theirs is a different emphasis from setting up programs or erecting buildings or implementing adult-derived solutions.

Who are the teens involved?

According to David Reese, who runs the teen group with his wife, Pat, the teen group is a "mixed bag of kids, a vertical variety."

David Reese, 37, manages ICA, a non-profit loan fund that invests in employee-owned businesses. Pat Reese, 38, designs women's and men's clothing for Timberland. They live on Essex Street. They do not have children.

Virginia Tyler is the director of religious education at Christ Church. She is 26 and single. She has worked professionally as a youth minister. With a background of studies in comparative religion, she is studying for a masters degrees in divinity now, and education later, at Harvard.

Ms. Tyler said she saw a need at Christ Church for a youth program. It was generally perceived that confirma-

'Death, sexuality, life issues, who we are and what we are becoming,' are the issues about which teens are concerned.

Virginia Tyler

tion meant a graduation from church for young people. Last fall, in order to keep teens involved in the church, she gathered together a group of ninth- and tenth-graders. The Reeses, from the Christ Church community, volunteered to meet and talk about what is important to the teens. "Death, sexuality, life issues, who we are and what we are becoming," Ms. Tyler said were the issues the kids wanted to discuss.

The Reeses and their teen group use popular musical lyrics to reflect current values, and examine how these ideas are developed and what relevance they have for their lives. He said the rules for the teen group are: "This is a safe place with respect for each other's confidences and what people have to say is of value."

"The goal is to get students to open their eyes to being involved in what they care about ... and how to pursue it. Success is finding some principles that work for you and allow you to work well with others," Mr. Reese said.

Trust leads to honesty

In her dealings with teens, Ms. Tyler tries to be "really honest." The process is not so much getting the answer as examining how you get to the answer, she said.

"We should be able to say to kids what is important to us," she said.

"Part of being affirmed is being able to hear that my concerns (as a teen) are real. The adult's role is to listen, to say we have time to listen to you; there is no risk or judgment," said Mr. Reese.

Ms. Tyler agrees. "People are embarrassed by kids being kids. It emphasizes their (parents) lack of control. Kids' issues are valid issues for all of us."

"Kids are busy in a Filofax way"

According to Mr. Reese, Andover kids are busy in a really-structured way. "They have scheduled lives with lots of appointments ... life, a la carte. One of the great pleasures of being a child (teen) is to run your own life organically," he said.

And that led to discussion of a hang-out spot. He said the town needs a youth center that doesn't cost the kids much and is not structured. It should be readily available.

"It would give kids a sense of community and allow them to feel connected," he said.

Ms. Tyler agrees. "We don't need to babysit kids ... they can entertain themselves."

Apprentices and interns

"Andover is not a movie set," said Ms. Tyler.

Kids need real-life experiences and adults need to realize kids have valid input. Adults, such as merchants and teachers, could take on kids as apprentices. It would be wonderful to have kids mentored by a craftsman to learn that discipline and learn life values at the same time."

She mentioned the interns at the Andover Townsmen as an example of learning from skilled adults by doing.

Parents respond to what the teen-agers said

this town don't want their kids to have or even hear about condoms, which is lunacy.

"That's playing Russian Roulette with your child's life. The only thing that will kill you is ignorance."

"Kids want to be with their friends. So do parents. There's nothing wrong with that."

They want better transportation. "So do I." But he is not sure they would use public transportation.

Regarding older teens saying younger teens are worse than they were: That's not necessarily true. In 1980, while he was on the building committee, there were two drug overdoses in the middle school, Mr. Gropper said.

What can be done?

"We can give teens some place to go that hopefully is centrally located. Stop being sanctimonious and force feeding them and telling them AIDS and drugs don't exist."

Their peers can also do something by seeing that those who need help get it.

"This can't be a one-way street."

And if they show they deserve respect, you give it to them.

We spend millions of dollars in this town on open land, but not a cent on teens' concerns, he said.

Regarding the old bowling alley building on Park Street: Buy it. Get rid of the lawsuit and turn it into a teen center.

"Unless somebody tries, I guarantee you it will never happen."

Everybody says taxes are too high and we can't afford anymore. "Tell me what your kids are worth."

We've had hate crimes, violence in the schools, suicide, it all gets hushed up. Committees get appointed to discuss it or a report gets written and sits on somebody's desk.

"We don't deal with problems," he said.

Regarding the Townsmen's series on teens: "If nothing comes out of it, it will cause more harm than good" because it is raising teens' expectations, that they are being listened to and heard, and they have a right to expect a response.

Marlies Zammuto, 7 Donna Road, has three boys, a junior at the high school, one at Doherty Middle School and a second-grader at Shawshen School. She is director of training and development for the Child Care Circuit, a child-care resource and referral agency.

Ms. Zammuto is grateful for the Townsmen's series on teens and said it has been helpful to get different perspectives.

"It was a great opportunity to discuss the issues with my sons."

Teens want to be seen as individuals, they made good points about being respected and wanting to be valued members of the community and want an opportunity to express their opinions, she said.

But if the response by parents is not overwhelming, that doesn't necessarily indicate a lack of interest on their part. The issues and concerns parents face are very complex and there are no simple answers.

"It's such a challenge to be a good parent," and there are no guarantees of the outcome. And there is no one solution to the problems, she said.

Talking with other parents is very helpful. Most parents network, whether it be through sports, PTOs, Parent-to-Parent, the Mother Connection, formal workshops or in the workplace. There are a number of ways to do it.

"The important thing is feeling connected, having the opportunity to do that."

"I wish there hadn't been labeling involved," she said, referring to the students being described as jocks, brains and nerds. "That's really oversimplifying things."

It's also a disservice to kids, as they are more than a label, they are individuals. The attempt to listen to a teen or see him or her as an individual often stops at the label. It is already difficult for kids who want to find where they belong in the community, but who also want to be seen as individuals. And what do you do about a teen who is interested and involved in many areas such as sports, academics, music or whatever?

"With labels come pre-conceived notions," and those must be broken down to get to the issues.

Some of the ideas that came out of the adult panel discussion were good, and Ms. Zammuto said she hopes the discussions serve as a catalyst for bringing groups together and accomplishing some things. She would like to hear more from a larger group and greater variety of teens.

Parents talk about teen-agers

"They are really the ones who know what's happening to them day-to-day."

Having a teen center is a good idea, but is part of a bigger picture.

"I think the teen center would go if it was a grass-roots effort by the teens, having the kids invested from the start."

It would not be the answer for all kids, but for some it would be "terrific."

She would also like to see other programs, such as Project Adventure, started in Andover.

If the community, working with the teens, puts together a menu of possibilities and a work plan to reach some of the goals, that would make all the discussion worthwhile.

The group could develop some realistic priorities, and maybe bring in someone to facilitate working toward the set goals. She is not concerned that parents would chime in.

"I think historically, parents have been very involved in Andover."

But she echoed what Mr. Gropper said, that it can't be left at the discussion stage.

"I think it would be incredibly frustrating if that's all that comes out of it."

Mimi Buchholz, 3 Delphi Circle, has two sons, a junior at AHS and a 1987 AHS graduate who is also a graduate of Northeastern University. She has worked as a dental hygienist, substitutes as a teacher's aide in the elementary schools and worked in day care.

She is sympathetic to what teens are saying about living in Andover and would like to offer teens a place to gather.

"The (R&R) Coffee House is a hangout, without a phone, allowing kids to smoke. Around the corner, Christy's (Market) will not sell cigarettes to anyone (teen) without an I.D. Also, it is in a dangerous location with the kids hanging in the Andover Small Engine parking lot in front of the commuter train.

"The town should donate an old house or unused building and have the kids fix it up, like Dragon's Lair (at Bancroft School, a project completed by students). It will mean more if they donate their work and time. No smoking/drinking allowed. Donations of pinball machines, dart boards, cards, board games, trivia, Scrabble, chess, etc.) are some ideas. Teens should have a choice of activities. Aerobics, yoga and other groups could be taught. This has been an issue since I have lived in Andover for 15 years and has always been an unsolved problem.

"I would like to see some school spirit at AHS and especially games (soccer)."

A parent with two learning-disabled teens who requested her name not be used for the privacy of a son who is still in school:

She just found an alternative program for one son outside the Andover schools and now gets a call a week from other parents asking her about it.

The Andover schools do not help build self esteem for learning disabled teens, she said. A proposed alternative program here was voted down. The school system in the town is college focused so that if a graduate isn't going on to college, he or she is lost.

"We're not hitting the broad spectrum with the kids."

In the middle schools, the economic social structure starts to split kids, she said.

"They tend to feel the difference."

Parents fight day and night to get kids to go to school, and the school turns around and suspends them for something and sends them back home, "which is what the kids want."

"I believe in in-house suspensions."

Regarding setting up a forestry program for teens: If you go down to the (R&R) Coffee House and tell them to put on a uniform, you're not going to get the kids that need it, she said.

You need to start in grade school or earlier.

Respect must be earned. Kids don't respect a policeman for being a policeman, but for being a good policeman. It's the same for kids. They've got to earn it, she said.

She paraphrased what she said was a quote from Shakespeare about kids.

"At 12 you bottle them up and at 21 you let them out."

Mary Murphy, 192 High Plain Road, has two boys, both in middle school. She is a nurse at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford.

"I had my two sons read both articles," she said of the first two parts of the Andover for Teens series.

It's good. Parents have to get more involved, she said.

Ms. Murphy said she believes she has a good understanding of teens and tries to remain very positive about their going through adolescence.

As for the R&R Coffee House, although the coffee house, partly because of all the cigarette smoke. She said that anyone catering a business to youngsters, even if he or she is smoker, shouldn't encourage or create an atmosphere conducive to smoking.

She supports the idea of a teen center, but agrees with the comment made by more than one of the kids or adults - that a variety of activities and programs is needed. She would love to see the old bowling alley building on Park Street converted into some business catering to kids, whether it be a bowling alley, a pool room, a cinema or a music store - something that kids like.

Her boys go to the Classic Billiard Club on Route 114 across from the Showcase Cinemas in Lawrence. That area has the pool tables, movies, restaurants and a lot to offer kids, despite that there might also be an element of trouble in the area, she said.

She would like to see some of those type things offered in downtown Andover.

Your letters about the teen series are welcomed. They are due Monday at 5 p.m.

Specifics about new rDNA regulations

"Good Large-Scale Practice recommends the level of containment for large-scale, that is greater than 10 liters of culture, research or production involving viable, non-pathogenic and non-toxicogenic recombinant strains derived from host organisms that have an extended history of safe large scale use," according to the Federal Register.

"The regulations set up basic structures and levels of containment and protection in the workplace, sterilization procedures, hoods, protection for workers and the general public," said Mr. Penney.

According to Mr. Penney, "large scale" means using vats for manufacturing the rDNA materials about the size of a washing machine.

"There have been seven years of good track record with our local industries with no adverse impacts," he said.

Andover does not permit rDNA experiments with the strictest safety requirements, such as spacelab or nerve gas programs, he said.

Coordinated planning makes it easy for biotech industries to locate here

"Andover wants it to be known that this is the kind of industry we want," said Mr. Penney. He explained the town offers a public sewer system and an almost limitless supply of water.

"The town can fast track industry proposals," said Mr. Penney.

It has a unique governmental structure, which allows the coordination of the permitting process for new industries. The agencies that address land-use and development, health, planning and conservation are located in the same area - the lower floor of town offices.

Steve Colyer, director of planning for the town, agrees. He said the four divisions of planning, health, building and conservation are separate divisions with separate charters but they operate as one department. Mr. Colyer explained that the four divisions communicate with each other and offer checks and balances so an industry coming to town can get through the time-consuming and expensive process easily. Prior to formal hearings the four divisions and other officials such as fire and police hold an "interdepartmental review" with the industry to iron out conformance to regulations in advance. "We present a united front, one face. The intent is to streamline," said Mr. Colyer. Biotech companies are sending out feelers to locate here

Two or three biotech companies have been looking at the possibility of locating in Andover, according to town officials.

Biotechnology firms look for access to major research facilities and hospitals. These are only 25 miles away with a major connecting highway. In addition, Andover has a well-educated workforce, according to Mr. Penney.

"The town is pro-actively looking to be user-friendly to the biomedical field. It is a clean industry on the cutting edge," said Mr. Colyer.

Hopes of a 'three-peat' evaporate for Warriors

By Rick Harrison

There were early indications this might be the end of the road when the Andover High baseball team left the bases loaded in the first inning, and stranded runners at second and third in the next stanza.

The law of averages was about to catch up to the Golden Warriors.

They had survived several sub-par performances in recent games, including an un-Andover-like struggle against Newton North in their tourney opener.

Tuesday afternoon against Medford the other shoe fell, the fat lady sang, and the Golden Warriors' hopes for a State Division 1 "three-peat" evaporated in an 8-5 loss to visiting Medford.

This was the third straight year the two teams had met in the Eastern Mass. North Sectional Tournament quarterfinals. It was the Mustangs year to move on.

Five errors and seven runners left in scoring position were partially responsible for the early exit.

Also to blame was a highly-competitive two-sport All-Scholastic named Shawn Bates.

Bates, the number one public school hockey player in the state and headed to Boston University on a four-year athletic scholarship, turned in a gritty complete-game pitching effort for Medford.

Only 44 with a 2.13 earned run average during the regular season for Greater Boston League third place finisher Medford (14-7), the 5'9", 165-pound Bates allowed just five hits (three infield singles), struck out nine, walked eight and survived despite throwing 171 pitches.

His team made four errors, three of them in a shaky bottom of the ninth when Andover rallied to extend Bates's his time on the mound.

Bates also went 4-for-5 at the plate, including a double, three runs scored and one RBI.

State titles cannot be won every year, and the Warriors can look back on an outstanding 20-2 record.

Coach Ken Maglio's crew won the Merrimack Valley Conference Large School Division championship for the fourth straight time, and successfully defended their Ted Boudreau Memorial and Lawrence Invitational Tourna-

AHS tennis teams are doubly impressive

By Rick Harrison

In this 1993 season of outstanding parallel performances, the Andover High boys and girls tennis teams produced the following impressive doubles:

(1) Both teams finished the regular season with perfect 16-0 records.

(2) Both won Merrimack Valley Conference championships.

(3) Both had No. 1 players Alison Georgian and Eric Block named MVC Players-of-the-Year.

(4) Both were seeded No. 4 in the Eastern Mass. Division 1 North Sectional Tournament.

(5) Both disposed of their first two tourney opponents.

Both AHS net squads also advanced to the Sectional semifinals, where the one*unavoidable double ended this symmetrical season:

(6) Both Warrior teams were eliminated by Concord-Carlisle to finish 18-1 overall.

Both Concord teams are defending State champions and both appear headed in the same direction this spring.

The undefeated C-C girls (20-0) have won 137 consecutive Dual County League matches, three consecutive State Division 1 titles and an incredible eight State championships in the last nine years.

They ousted the Lady Warriors, 5-0, went on to beat Brookline 4-1 the following day and were primed to face Duxbury in the State semifinals earlier this week.

The C-C boys, who captured the State Division 2 title last year before returning to Division 1 this season, improved to 19-0 with a hard-earned 3-2 victory over Andover.

Prior to being derailed by the C-C juggernauts, the Warrior Expresses won quarterfinal matches with the girls topping Winchester 4-1 and the boys whitewashing Newton North 5-0.

The AHS boys will begin next season 162-18 over their last 180 matches, while the girls will open play 132-8 in their last 140 matches.

Andover girls, 4-1

The Lady Warriors won three of their four quarterfinal points against No. 5 seed Winchester (13-3 record) in straight sets, adding this victory to an earlier 4-1 decision over Newton South.

Junior No. 1 Alison Georgian set the

Justin Hesenius earns another honor

Andover High senior Justin Hesenius, displaying his winning form here, was one of just 38 high school baseball players nationwide named to the 1993 Mizuno USA All-American team. This most recent honor follows his selection earlier this spring as Merrimack Valley Conference, Eastern Mass. Division 1 and Massachusetts Gatorade Player-of-the-Year. An integral member of two State Division 1 championship baseball teams at AHS, Justin is 8-0 on the mound this year, has struck out 106 batters in 67 innings, and is one of only four pitchers in Andover High history to win more than 20 games in his career. At the plate he is the reigning MVC batting champion, is currently hitting .432, and has four home runs and five triples this season after finishing last year with seven triples, 34 RBI and a .436 average. Justin is also an All-Conference performer in hockey and golf. He will attend Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., next fall on a baseball scholarship, and he should also get to play a lot of golf while in the Sunshine State.

Lavoie, Shepard carry girls and boys track at All-State Meet

By Rick Harrison

Quality performances by Stacey Lavoie, Steve Shepard and a pair of relay teams carried the day for the Andover High girls and boys track teams, who finished sixth and 11th respectively in the team standings at the annual MIAA All-State Meet hosted by Shrewsbury High.

No AHS athlete won a State title, although Miss Lavoie was a close runner-up and Shepard posted third and fourth place finishes.

The Eastern Mass. Class B champion girls scored in just two events, but they were both second place finishes by Miss Lavoie and the 4x100 meter sprint relay team which enabled Andover to tie for sixth with 16 points.

Defending champ Falmouth High was an easy girls division winner after chalking up 49 points, but the only other teams among the 61 competing schools to finish ahead of the Lady Warriors were Norwell (36 points), Masconomet Regional (31), Stoughton (23) and Medford (17). Andover was tied with Brockton and Oliver Ames.

On the boys side, EMass. Class B runner-up Andover was tied for 11th among 62 competing schools with 12 points.

The top 10 consisted of champion New Bedford (62 points), defending champ Brockton (41), St. John's Prep (32), Weymouth (26), Lexington (24), Pittsfield (15), Dighton-Rehoboth (14), Leominster (14), Burlington (13) and Mohawk Regional (13).

Andover's two individual and two relay team placewinners have all qualified to compete in the season-ending New England Championship Meet this Saturday at Bridgewater State College (10 a.m.).

Andover girls

Class B champion Stacey Lavoie renewed her storied 1-on-1 rivalry with Masconomet Regional's Kristen Johnson in the 110-meter high hurdles, and once again it was a photo finish with Miss Johnson prevailing for the third time in their five head-to-head battles.

Miss Lavoie finished a scant .06 behind Miss Johnson, as the winner was clocked in 14.90 and runner-up Miss Lavoie in 14.96.

The Andover standout nicked the next-to-last hurdle and that may have been the difference.

Chrisann Sevoian, Methuen's excellent hurdler and Miss Lavoie's chief Merrimack Valley Conference rival, was forced to settle for third in 15.29.

Ashworth interns with Minor League baseball team

Jeff Ashworth, son of Jeanne and Jerry Ashworth, has been accepted for an internship with the Idaho Falls Braves Minor League team.

The Andover phenom's time was well above her 14.5 school-record effort in the Class B Meet at Reading.

The final Lavoie-Johnson duel will occur Saturday in Bridgewater.

The Lady Warriors' other eight points came from the 4x100 meter relay crew of freshman Randi Spiegel, sophomores Jamie Barron and Amy Levesque, and Miss Lavoie who also placed second after winning a second straight Class B title the previous week.

They ran a swift 50.46 in the All-State Meet, but had to settle for the runner-up spot behind Norwell High which crossed less than a half-second ahead in 50.10.

Andover boys

Team Captain Steve Shepard once again displayed his diversified strengths by placing in two individual events, and also helping the Warriors' 4x400 meter relay team to its fifth place finish as well.

The Villanova-bound football-track star was third in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles and fourth in the triple jump.

His 39.72 clocking in the hurdles was almost a half-second faster than his third-place Class B clocking (40.1) the week before.

Finishing ahead of Shepard were champion Liam Govostas of Burlington (38.05) and Troy Semper of Brockton (38.63). The top five all cracked the 40-second barrier.

Shepard's 43.7" leap in the All-State triple jump was more than two feet less than his winning 45.9" Class B effort.

Soaring beyond Shepard were Raymond Jones of Cohasset (46.1"), Paul Cady of Dedham (44.1") and Johann Jack of Lexington (43.8").

Shepard's two individual places accounted for 10 of Andover's 12 points.

The 4x400 meter relay team of Shepard, sophomore Matt Ely, senior Jon Cirella and senior Captain Colin Arseneault was fifth in a swift 3:30.53, which was almost three seconds faster than their Class B championship time (3:33.4).

However, it was also more than eight seconds slower than All-State champ Brockton High's lightning-fast quartet (3:22.24).

Boston College High (3:27.73), MVC rival Wilmington (3:28.34) and New Bedford (3:28.83) also finished ahead of the fleet Warrior foursome.

He will spend the baseball season in Idaho Falls doing public relations work and writing for the management. The team is affiliated with the Atlanta Braves.

Drive for Listening golf tourney date set

The third annual Drive for Listening Golf Tournament will be played at the Bradford County Club in Bradford on Tuesday, June 15.

Entry fee is $100 per person and the format is a 9 a.m. shotgun scramble. Fee includes greens fees, carts and tee gifts and dinner. Prizes will be distributed at dinner following the tournament. Dinner guests are welcome at a fee of $15 per person.

Al Curran Jr. is chairman of the event, which benefits the auditory verbal education of deaf children, hence the name of the Tournament (BCC Drive for Listening Tournament). The majority of deaf (hearing impaired) children do have some residual hearing. If a hearing-impaired child is outfitted with appropriate hearing aids and intensely educated, they can learn to listen and speak. This training and education allows a deaf (hearing impaired) child to be mainstreamed into schools with their peers and to live a normal life in society.

Northeastern University appoints John Perry as coach

John Perry of Andover, a recent star athlete at the University of New Hampshire, has been appointed a restricted earnings football coach at Northeastern University.

Perry, who set several UNH records as a wide receiver and team captain for the Wildcats in the 1992 season, will assist with the offense and receivers.

Perry established touchdown reception marks as an All Scholastic player at Andover High School, where he also captained the basketball and track squads.

Among the standards he raised at UNH were the longest reception (86 yards), most receptions in a game (14) and consecutive games with a reception (42). He graduated as a dean's list student in communications and history in December.

pace with a rapid 6-0, 6-0 dispatch of the Sachems' Catherine Doherty.

Both doubles teams also won in two sets, senior Co-Captain Beth Everett and senior Julie Doherty edging Kelly Smith and Natalie Ciolla 6-4, 6-4 while senior Co-Captain Kara Gack and junior Jackie LeMaitre trimmed Katie Hood and Jessica Liuda 6-2, 6-4.

Freshman Andrea Marvin toughed out a gruelling 3-6, 7-6, 6-4 win over Winchester's Meghan Hurley in their third singles marathon.

Concord-Carlisle girls, 5-0

The Patriot girls dispatched Andover efficiently, dropping only seven games in singles and struggling only at first doubles.

The previously-undefeated No. 1 tandem of Beth Everett and Julie Doherty (9-1) came painfully close to salvaging a point, leading 4-3 in the third set before the C-C duo of Alyssa Pattie and Molly Preble closed out their victory by winning the last three games.

Patti and Preble won the first set, 6-3, Everett and Doherty battled back to capture the second set in a tiebreaker, and the third set went back-and-forth before the strong Concord finish closed it out at 6-4.

The Everett-Doherty combo had rallied in similar fashion against their Newton South opponents, winning that three-setter with a strong second-set finish and third-set breeze.

The Lady Warriors' tandem of Kara Gack and Jackie LeMaitre also lost for the first time (7-1), as Concord's Carolyn Bing and Danielle Driscoll rolled 6-2, 6-3.

In singles, Alison Georgian gave C-C's Kara Swanson a minor tussle before Miss Swanson prevailed 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Swanson is the only senior in the Patriots' starting lineup. She has played on three previous State championship teams, moving from No. 1 doubles up through the singles ranks, and she had missed seven matches earlier this spring with a stress fracture in her right foot.

Andover's No. 2 and No. 3 singles were simply overmatched, as senior Rachel Roberts dropped a 1-6, 0-6 decision to Neely Steinberg and Andrea Marvin was outstroked by Pam Hurwitch 0-6, 1-6.

Andover boys, 5-0

Unseeded Newton North, which bowed out at 14-2, was much more competitive than the shutout score indicates.

Three of the five matches went the three-set distance and there were also a pair of tiebreakers won by Andover.

Senior Co-Captain Eric Block had the easiest time with a 6-2, 6-2 sweep of the Tigers' Brian Colton.

No 3 singles Mike Stein was the only other straight-set winner, but needed an 8-6 tiebreaker triumph in the first set before subduing Jeff Breault 7-6, 6-3.

Junior No. 2 singles Dan Queen won his 16th match of the season, clawing from behind for a gritty 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 decision over determined opponent Jon Temin.

Kara Gack keeps her eye on the ball while using her strong backhand to return it.

Both doubles matches went the route, Co-Captain Eric Dahlstrand and John Faldetta rallying for a seesaw 6-4, 3-6, 6-1 victory while Kurt Dahlstrand and Adam Monahan dug themselves a hole and then escaped in a third-set tiebreaker.

Dahlstrand-Monahan lost the opening set 1-6, dominated the second set 6-0, and then won the third-set 7-6 with the tiebreaker 7-4.

Concord-Carlisle boys, 3-2

All three Patriots' points were won in straight sets, while Andover two victories came in three-set struggles.

Mike Stein finished unbeaten (14-0) in regular season and team tournament play with a 6-2, 4-6, 7-5 squeaker over C-C's Joel Merrifield, and the No. 2 doubles team of Adam Monahan and Kurt Dahlstrand also ended with a perfect record (9-0) following a come-from-behind 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 conquest of Brent Ginsberg and Jim Banar.

Concord-Carlisle's top two singles players, Fred Lidskog and Paul Wulfsberg, remained unbeaten as the former edged Eric Block 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 and the latter handed Dan Queen his first loss 6-2, 6-3.

Jerome Wright and Brad Ouderkirk earned the third C-C point with a 6-3, 6-2 conquest of Erik Dahlstrand and John Faldetta.

Graduates

Both Andover teams will be hit hard by graduation.

Alison Georgian returns but the Lady Warriors lose Beth Everett, Julie Doherty, Rachel Roberts, Kara Gack, Melissa Minot and Sajine Shetty.

Dan Queen is back next spring for the AHS boys, but the graduates include Eric Block, Erik Dahlstrand, John Faldetta and Andy Cohen.

By Rick Harrison

Sue Cookson and Abby Woodroffe were the offensive leaders, while Carol Boulanger was the top pitcher, as the Andover freshman softball team recently completed a 6-6-1 season.

Miss Woodroffe led the starting players in batting average with an even .500 mark, going 20-for-40, while Miss Cookson hit .370 and was team-high in RBI (24), official at-bats (54), home runs (4) and runs scored (19). She also tied for the lead in triples (3) and base-hits (20).

WHY KARATE FOR KIDS?

Self-confidence does not come naturally for many children, but rather it is developed over a period of time. As a child accomplishes new goals, his confidence level increases. Children become more self confident in karate because they progress individually at their own pace and are not judged against others.

Self defense — Children self defense takes many forms. Many parents worry about their children being safe on the street yet one of the real problems concerns a child's ability to defend himself against other kids. Karate teaches children to think instead of panic in potentially serious situations as well as how to react to threats from other kids.

Every Child Wins In karate every kid can be a winner instead of a bench sitter because karate allows children to reach for their own potential rather than directly compete against other kids.

Coordination — Karate challenges the entire body developing coordination, balance, agility and poise often neglected in many team sports available to children in this age group.

Fun Karate lessons are a dynamic and challenging approach to the martial arts for children who are athletic, energetic, awkward or shy, bold, nice or maybe even a little wild once in a while... karate is probably for a kid just like yours.

Our pledge We are dedicated to giving a child the most professional, well supervised and highest quality classes available in any sport anywhere!

Classes are taught at the N. Andover Knights Of Columbus, 505 Sutton St. No Andover Ma

ment titles.

The loss to Medford was only the fifth in Andover's last 74 games spanning three years.

The Mustangs move to the semifinals today where they face MVC member Lowell High (14-8) at Mark Devlin Field in Lawrence (4 p.m.). Lowell ousted Woburn (5-0) and Billerica (5-4) in earlier rounds.

Medford, 8-5 (Sectional Quarterfinal)

Andover never led in this game, although Medford didn't break it open until scoring four runs in the top of the eighth.

Junior righthander Todd Murray (3-1) breezed through the first three innings for Andover, while Shawn Bates struggled for the Mustangs.

In the Warriors' first Josh Nelken beat out an infield roller, Paul Allard walked, Toby Guzowski drew a two-out walk to load the bases, and Bates went 2-0 on the next hitter before a grounder to short ended the threat.

Junior Bob Daley walked and junior Jeff Lembo singled to open the AHS second. Scott Henry advanced both with a sacrifice bunt, but a popout and called third strike kept the locals frustrated.

Medford took a 2-0 lead in the top of the fourth when Bates singled to left, both runners were safe on Justin Crisafoli's fielder's choice grounder, Joe Farnum laced an RBI single, and the second run scored on an infield error.

In the bottom of the inning Ben Russell and Lembo walked, Bates committed a balk, and Russell trotted across when Henry's grounder was misplayed.

Nelken followed with a screaming liner to third base, which Steve Shea turned into an inning-ending double play to save two runs.

The rivals traded runs in the fifth as Medford clung to a 3-2 lead.

Bates rapped a two-out double to center and scored on Crisafoli's single, but Andover retaliated when Matt Wolcott hammered a triple to center and scored on All-American Justin Hesenius's line drive sacrifice.

The Mustangs moved ahead 4-2 and chased Todd Murray in the sixth with a pair of singles.

Lefthander Scott Eggert relieved and surrendered a pair of singles in the seventh, but was helped out of trouble when Nelken, Allard and Guzowski turned a textbook 6-4-3 double play.

Mike Maguire is congratulated after scoring Andover's first run against Newton North. Andover went on to win the game, 6-5, in 10 innings.

Andover closed to 4-3 in the bottom of the seventh as Paul Allard beat out an infield hit, Matt Wolcott was hit by a pitch, both advanced on a wild pitch, Justin Hesenius walked on four pitches to load the bases, and Toby Guzowski walked to force home the run.

Once again Bates escaped further trouble when Ben Russell lined out to second base on a 3-2 pitch.

Medford boosted the lead to 8-3 with four runs in the eighth. An error and walk set the table for consecutive two-out RBI singles by Steve Shea, Bates and Crisafoli. Bates scored the final run on a wild pitch.

The Warriors refused to go quietly, however, as sophomore Tom Tanin walked to open the ninth and consecutive Mustang errors loaded the bases with no one out. Justin Hesenius hoisted a sacrifice fly to right, and the second run scored when Bates threw Toby Guzowski's comebacker to the mound into center field.

The Warriors' season ended moments later, however, when Bates grabbed another one-hopper to start a 1-6-3 double play.

Andover, 6-5 (10 innings)

The Golden Warriors' wakeup call came just in time, as they escaped being a major upset victim when first-round opponent Newton North faltered in the ninth and 10th innings.

The Tigers (9-11 record) hopped on Andover ace pitcher Justin Hesenius for four quick runs in the top of the first, and were protecting a 5-2 lead in the bottom of the ninth.

But the visitors' glaring weaknesses, including a lack of pitching depth, finally caught up to them as the AHS players donned their inside-out and backwards "rally caps" in the ninth and batted back for the victory.

The locals, who have managed numerous late-inning escapes this season, won 20 games for the fourth straight year.

Hesenius settled down after the shaky first to pitch strong ball over the next eight frames, giving way to Scott Eggert who picked up the win after blanking Newton North in the 10th.

Hesenius yielded eight hits, fanned 10 to boost his season total to 106 in 67 innings, and walked only two.

After the nightmarish first he scattered four singles, three of them infield hits, and allowed just one unearned run.

North's emotion-charged first inning began with an opposite-field single to left by leadoff man Brendan McCue. He stole second, took third on a fielder's choice, and scored when J.P. Jaillet beat out a chopper to short.

DH Forrest St. Clair ripped an RBI double to left, Matt Hurwitz dropped a suicide squeeze bunt, and the fourth run crossed on Steve Sherr's single to left.

Andover's Warriors beat Newton North, doesn't get past Medford

hander Jason Hehir, a junkballer with a wicked pickoff move, limited Andover to five hits and two runs over the first seven innings. He walked five, struck out only one, but kept himself out of serious trouble by picking three runners off first base.

His excellent move neutralized Andover's running game, while his assortment of off-speed pitches kept the Warrior hitters off balance.

Fortunately he tired in the eighth and was lifted in favor of Zack Raymond, who escaped that inning with a doubleplay but couldn't find the plate in the ninth.

Andover found its poise and nibbled away at the deficit with single runs in the third and seventh.

In the third, DH Jeff Lembo doubled to left and scored on Scott Henry's bat-control single to right.

Ben Russell walked to open the seventh, pinch-runner Dave Gardner advanced to third on an infield out and wild pitch, and scored when Henry hoisted a sac-fly to right.

The Warriors also squandered a bid in the sixth. Josh Nelken beat out an infield hit, took second on a balk, and was bunted to third by Paul Allard. Matt Wolcott walked, but Justin Hesenius popped out to shallow center and Toby Guzowski's sharp line drive to straight-away center was stabbed for the third out.

Bottom seed Newton North, 8-3 after a horrendous 1-8 start, scored its final run in the seventh when Jason Minaker singled to left, continued to second on an outfield error, took third on a wild pitch, and crossed on a two-out infield error.

Shortstop Nelken ended the top of the ninth with a fine play up the middle on Jaillet, nipping him at first to save a run. Mike Mitchell, who had beaten out an infield hit and moved to second on an infield out, had rounded third and was well on his way home when Nelken made the clutch play.

In the bottom of the ninth reliever Raymond walked Toby Guzowski on five pitches, Ben Russell reached on an error, and Bob Daley walked on five pitches to load the bases with no one out.

Enter second reliever McCue, whose second pitch was cranked to deep left by Jeff Lembo for a game-tying three-run triple. The North outfielder made a costly mistake by taking two steps forward before realizing the ball was over his head.

The next batter fanned, and then an attempted suicide squeeze went awry when the ball was missed and Lembo was tagged out in a rundown.

Eggert (7-0) retired Newton 1-2-3 in the top of the 10th.

In the bottom half Hesenius laced a two-out single and took second on a passed ball. Guzowski was intentionally walked, both runners advanced on a wild pickoff throw, and Eggert walked in his first plate appearance of the season.

Jason Minaker was called into the sticky bases-loaded situation as reliever No. 3, and he walked home the winning run on a 3-2 pitch to Bob Daley.

The Golden Warriors managed just eight hits with Josh Nelken, Hesenius and Lembo contributing two each.

American Legion baseball team opens season this Sunday

By Rick Harrison

The Andover Post 8 American Legion baseball team will open its 1993 home season this Sunday against Middleton at the Andover High varsity field.

Game time is 5 p.m.

Andover is the defending District 1, Zone 8 champ and went 23-0 last summer before losing to New Bedford in its first-ever State Legion Tournament appearance.

Tuesday night, following the elimination of the Andover High baseball team from the Eastern Mass. Division 1 North Tournament, Post 8 manager Joe Iarrobino indicated the scheduled season opener on Saturday at Gloucester will most likely be postponed until later in the year.

Post 8 roster

Andover returns 11 players from last year's championship team, and has added six new players.

The veterans are 18-year-olds Justin Hesenius, Gus Quattlebaum, Mike Sullivan, Todd Murray and Bob Daley, and 17-year-olds Paul Allard, Brian Flanagan, Toby Guzowski, Matt Wolcott, Jeff Lembo and Matt Marvin.

The newcomers are 16-year-olds Todd Harris, Jeff Hesenius, Alex Marshall, Dana McCann, Rick Mendez and Tom Tanin.

Quattlebaum, Sullivan, Flanagan and Harris are Andover residents and members of the Phillips Academy varsity which finished the spring season among the top prep school baseball teams in New England.

Matt Marvin played for St. John's Prep, while the remainder of the squad played for the Andover High varsity or junior varsity teams.

High school All-American Justin Hesenius, the Massachusetts Division 1 Player-of-the-Year, is the scheduled starting pitcher for Sunday's game.

Other members of the mound staff include Todd Murray, Gus Quattlebaum, Matt Wolcott, Jeff Lembo and Matt Marvin.

Joining Andover in Zone 8 are Lawrence, Methuen, Haverhill and Middleton.

The Middleton Legion draws its players from Masconomet Regional, Pentucket Regional, Triton Regional, Governor Dummer, St. John's Prep and the towns of Topsfield, Boxford, Rowley, Byfield, Newbury, West Newbury and Middleton.

Potential non-league opponents this summer are Nashua, N.H., 1991 State Legion champion Lowell, Reading and Sudbury. Dates and times for those games will be announced later.

Andover Legion Day

Also in the works is an "Andover American Legion Day" which will include an Alumni Game involving Legion players from the past five years.

Post 8 will play all its home games at Andover High.

At the end of the regular season each Zone champion will automatically qualify for the State playoffs.

The four teams with the next highest winning percentage will square off in a special playoff to determine a "wild card" berth.

Nick Rizzo charged with three additional counts

By Lisa Boudreau

Democratic fundraiser Nicholas A. Rizzo Jr., of 30 Hemlock Road, was charged Friday by a federal grand jury with three additional counts of mail and bank fraud. This is the second indictment for the former chief fundraiser for the Paul Tsongas presidential campaign.

The three new charges follow a 46-count indictment last February that charged the 59-year-old with other mail and bank fraud crimes, as well as money laundering and violation of federal election laws. He is scheduled to stand trial on all 49 counts Sept. 15.

Three new charges

The new charges come within one week of a $125-a-plate benefit party for Mr. Rizzo and his family that is planned for tomorrow, Friday, at Merrimack College by his friends and family. According to organizers, about 100 are expected to attend.

One of the two mail fraud charges allege that Mr. Rizzo defrauded Andover businessmen Robert Macartney and Anthony Silva of a total of $145,000 during an eight-year period. According to the charges, Mr. Rizzo obtained $100,000 from Mr. Silva and $45,000 from Mr. Macartney and told them he would invest the money in government subsidized real estate projects. Mr. Rizzo, say prosecutors, never invested the money and kept it for himself.

The second mail fraud charges alleges that in the early 1990s Mr. Rizzo swindled $10,000 from the partners of Rockingham NED, the group that developed the Rockingham Park Mall in Salem, N.H. Mr. Rizzo was hired as a political consultant by the group, which was trying to obtain the required permits to develop the mall at the time.

According to prosecutors, Mr. Rizzo allegedly suggested the developers make a contribution to the New Hampshire Republican Party in Mr. Rizzo's name so that the developers would not be harassed for further contributions by GOP fundraisers, and that he would make sure officials knew the contribution came from developers.

The indictment alleges that Mr. Rizzo sent the developers a copy of the front of a $10,000 check that he claimed he sent to the New Hampshire Republican Committee's Voter Education Fund. Prosecutors say Mr. Rizzo never made the donation and that he pocketed the $10,000 reimbursement from the developers.

The third charged handed down last Friday alleges Mr. Rizzo fraudulently obtained $100,000 in loans from the Bank of Greece.

If found guilty on the additional two mail fraud charges, Mr. Rizzo could face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $1,000 in fines for each conviction. The bank fraud charge carries a maximum of 30 years in jail and up to $1,000,000 in fines. Mr. Rizzo also faces a maximum of 346 years in prison and up to $14 million in fines stemming from the February charges.

Mr. Rizzo's lawyer did not return the Townsmen's phone calls.

Water meets state standard

An advertisement that ran on page 68 in last week's Townsmen incorrectly stated that Andover's water has six times the lead considered safe by the EPA.

In fact, Andover's water is well below the state's restriction for lead and mercury contents allowed.

The advertiser made the mistake of taking information from another newspaper's story, which had dropped a decimal point in reporting Andover's water's lead content.

Ed. reform bill is close to passing

have to spend more money per public school student annually by the year 2000. For the 1991-'92 school year, Andover spent $4,650 per student, and the bill requires a town spend between $5,500 and $6,000 to qualify for the extra funds. Andover already has plans to up its per-pupil spending for next year, with or without the new bill, according to State Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover.

"It is going to be about where we planned," he said.

Rep. Coon believes the bill is a good step toward needed educational reform.

The billed passed each chamber by wide margins. It promises $175 million more in state-aid payments for communities next year. That figure is slated to peak at an additional $1.3 billion annually by the year 2000.

The reform bill establishes tougher standards for students and teachers, more autonomy for building principals, and it abolishes the current tenure system for teachers, said Rep. Coon.

"It isn't a panacea, but it is a step in the right direction," he said Tuesday evening, following the House enactment vote.

"The future of the (state's) economy rests on a highly educated work force. This gets us going in that direction," he said.

Rep. Coon added that he is pleased with provisions that will establish a "core curriculum" and minimum graduation requirements for all Baystate public high school graduates.

The governor has 10 days to review the bill, but he could send it back to legislators with suggested amendments.

Gov. Weld has strongly supported unlimited school choice - a student's right to choose where he/she goes to school regardless of where he/she lives. That part of the bill has been scaled down to include only those communities that wish to participate.

The governor has been worried that the bill doesn't ensure that the additional state aid money will not be used by communities for teacher raises and early retirement funding.

Tom Meyers, president of the Andover teachers' union, said he is pleased with the overall provisions of the bill. He is happy that communities will receive some of the state aid funds that previously had been cut. He also is pleased with the bill's early-retirement provisions, which communities can vote to adopt.

Asked how he feels about tenure being eliminated by the bill, and replaced with just-cause firing provisions, Mr. Meyers said, "We can live with that. It's not an issue that will be harmful."

Mr. Meyers said Andover already is meeting and "exceeds" the standards that this bill mandates for teachers.

Provisions of the bill

The bill provides:

- Statewide standards will be established for grade levels in subjects such as English, math, foreign language, history and science.

- Standardized tests will evaluate students' performance in meeting the minimum requirements, and school-by-school results will be published by the state.

- By 1998 high school seniors will have to pass a state test, meeting standards in each subject, in order to graduate from high school.

- Tenure for teachers will be abolished and replaced with a just-cause firing standard and an arbitration appeals process.

- The state can seize poor-performing schools, fire principals and teachers, direct state money to those schools and order local communities to spend more on education.

- School choice will be available to communities that vote to participate. No more than 1 to 2 percent of the overall state public school population will be able to participate in choice.

- Money will be earmarked by the state for 25 charter schools that can begin operating after 1995. They will receive state money, but will be run by teachers, parents and private institutions such as universities and museums.

Said plan is recorded with Essex North Registry of Deeds on February 3, 1978, as Plan No. 7761.

Subject to and with the benefit of easements, restrictions, reservations or takings of record, if any, insofar as the same are now in force and applicable.

Being the same premises conveyed to us by deed of Wilfred Mullett, et ux dated February 3, 1956 recorded with said deeds in Book 2125, Page 72 which has the address of 20 Harding Street, Andover, MA and Lots 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 Harding Street Andover, MA.

Please note that notwithstanding the language referenced above, the scale for the Plan recorded at Essex North Registry of deeds on February 3, 1978 as Plan No. 7761 should have read "Scale 1" = 40".

The above-described premises are subject to and with the benefit of easements, restrictions, agreements and rights of record insofar as the same are in force and applicable.

The above-premises will be sold and conveyed subject to the above and subject to all unpaid taxes, tax titles, municipal liens and assessments, if any, which take precedence over the said mortgage above-described.

The Mortgagee shall offer for sale the mortgaged premises by two methods.

METHOD 1 - The first method ("Method 1") shall be the offering for sale of portions of the mortgaged premises, as follows:

a) The following portion of the mortgaged premises, being Lots 1 and 2 as described on the above-referenced Plan No. 7761 (20 Harding Street and Lot 2 Harding Street, Andover, MA) will be offered for sale at Public Auction at 2:00 p.m. on said June 25, 1993.

b) The following portion of the mortgaged premises, being Lots 3, 4, 5 and 6 as described on the above-referenced Plan No. 7761 (3, 4, 5 and 6 Harding Street, Andover, MA) will be offered for sale at Public Auction at 2:30 p.m. on said June 25, 1993.

METHOD 2 - The second method ("Method 2") shall be the offering for sale of the entire mortgaged premises, being Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 as described on the above-referenced Plan No. 7761 (20 Harding Street, Lots 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 Harding Street, Andover, MA), at 3:00 p.m. on said June 25, 1993.

All sales shall take place on or near the portion of the premises where an auctioneer's red flag will be prominently displayed.

If the highest bid for the entire mortgaged premises as a single sale (Method 2) shall be equal to or exceed the cumulative total of the highest bids at which the mortgaged premises would be sold separately at the earlier sales (Method 1), then the individual sales (Method 1) shall be voided and any and all deposits paid therefor returned to the respective bidder (s) and the mortgaged premises shall be sold to the highest bidder for the entire mortgaged premises as a single sale (Method 2). If the bid by the highest bidder for the entire mortgaged premises (Method 2) shall not equal or exceed the total of the cumulative highest bids for the mortgaged premises as separate sales (Method 1), then each portion will be sold to the respective highest bidder (s) for the mortgaged premises as separate sales (Method 1).

TERMS OF SALE: The highest bidder at the sale of 20 Harding Street and Lot 2 Harding Street sold separately pursuant to Method 1 (a) shall be required to make a deposit of Seventy-Five Hundred ($7,500.00) Dollars to the Mortgagee in cash, certified check or cashier's check at the time and place of the sale of said portion of the mortgaged premises. 1. The successful bidder (s) shall be required to execute a Memorandum of Sale upon acceptance of the bid.
2. If the successful bidder (s) fails to comply with any term of the Memorandum of Sale, by failing to complete the purchase or otherwise, the Mortgagee retains its option, at Mortgagee's sole discretion, to complete the sale by selling the Premises, subject to the terms and conditions of sale stated therein, to the next highest, qualified bidder.
3. The premises shall be conveyed subject to any tenants in occupancy and subject to any leases, if any, affecting said Premises.
4. Mortgagee reserves the right to adjourn and continue the auction at a later date to be specified by Mortgagee at any time throughout the foreclosure proceedings prior to the sale and conveyance of the premises.

Teen names drawn for summer jobs

The following names of teenagers were drawn Monday from a hat to work for the town this summer. Put together by a group of community leaders called "Our Town," the names were drawn randomly to avoid political problems, said Selectman Larry Larsen, a member of the Our Town group.

Drawing names Monday were Mary Wesson, who runs the alternative sentencing program for the town; Peg Campbell of the Department of Community Services; and Candace Hall, personnel director for the town.

The following names were drawn:

David Bevacqua, Sarah Cook, Matthew Dahlgren, Jennifer

DeMarco, Vanessa Dunaway, Alan Eggert, and Kevin Foltz.

Also, Sean Gauthier, Liz Han, Christopher Harding, Patricia Har, Marcie Jacobson, Paul Kempton, Jesse Lugas, Kerry Lynch, Leanna Mills and Melissa O'Brien.

Farewell to Charlotte

um's associate director of development for individual giving.

Personal background

Ms. Smith, 34, who is single, lives in Arlington. She was raised in Pennsylvania, but traveled extensively as a teen-ager with her family. She attended middle school in London for several years and high school in Tokyo for four years.

Ms. Smith then moved back to the United States and graduated from Williams College in Massachusetts, where she earned a degree in history. For a few years she did administrative work and fundraising for historical groups, which she said was not very interesting or professionally fulfilling.

Ms. Smith went back to school for a master's degree in early American culture from the University of Delaware's Winterthur program. The Winterthur Museum was established by a member of the DuPont family and is now home to the world's largest collection of American decorative arts, said Ms. Smith. The early American era is from post-English settlement, about 1600, to pre-industrial development, mid-1800s, she said.

"What really drew me to the Andover position was that the Historical Society was looking for a curator as well as a director," she said.

Working with the society's volunteers and staff to refurbish parts of the Blanchard house and barn has been one of the most enjoyable challenges of her five years, she said. The Blanchard house, on Main Street, serves as the society's headquarters and houses its museum and research library.

The Historical Society "also has an excellent research library. In that respect it is far ahead of other small historical societies and it is very professional. Before I was hired it had already been accredited by the American Association of Museums," which was an additional draw, she said.

What she did as curator here

As curator Ms. Smith cared for and made efforts to enlarge the museum's collection of artifacts. She worked with the volunteers and two other full-time employees - Barbara Thilbault, the director of education; and Peg Hughes, assistant to the director/curator - to research and plan exhibits.

"For me, people really make a job. The people here are wonderful. I'm really going to miss them," she said.

A favorite exhibit she helped to design was one that chronicled the health and fitness craze as far back as the 1800s. During the researching phase, volunteers were able to find a flier inviting people to the town hall to learn all about the benefits of eating shredded wheat, she said.

As director, Ms. Smith was responsible for all operations at the Historical Society. She oversaw the annual budget, which was $135,000 this year. Half of the budget comes from the Andover Historical Society's endowment and the rest is raised through membership dues, education programs and lecture series and fundraisers, she said.

Charlotte Smith shows a pair of 19th century bloomers while preparing some time ago for an exhibit of underclothes.

Ms. Smith was also responsible for writing grants to fund special projects such as renovations and for developing plans to increase the society's membership.

Success stories

Besides the half dozen exhibits each year, some of the other accomplishments Ms. Smith said she is proud of are all the renovations to the Blanchard house. During her tenure the barn and a few of the rooms in the house have been refurbished.

The house and the barn now have new roofs and the exterior of the house has been painted to resemble its early 1800s appearance - off white with lighter white trim. Ms. Smith and other Historical Society volunteers worked with preservation experts to uncover original paint colors and architectural features for the interior and exterior of the house.

"We obviously couldn't return it to how it looked when it was first built because the library has recently been added. But, we did take off the glass porch that was added on maybe in the '30s and found the shutters for the front door that were stored in the barn and put them up," she said.

One project Ms. Smith had hoped to do, which will be left to her successor, is to finish restoring the remainder of the rooms in the Blanchard house. One room that was returned to its 1800s look is the family parlor.

"It takes time to research what the rooms once looked like (paint and wallpaper) and it also takes money," she said.

New job

At the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum she will be responsible for designing a new museum brochure and developing and implementing a plan to attract new members. She will also be involved in the museum's educational programs.

In her honor

Andover Historical Society members and volunteers said goodbye to Ms. Smith today, Thursday, at an afternoon open house held in her honor. Her last official day at work is tomorrow.

AHS seniors receive their diplomas at Merrimack College

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover High School's graduating class of 1993 - all 294 of them - received their diplomas Monday night at the 134th commencement ceremony, which was held at Merrimack College's indoor athletic complex.

The ceremony was scheduled to be held at the high school football field, but a forecast of rain convinced school officials to change the venue to the indoor facility. Last year's commencement exercises were delayed one day because of rain.

Following a salute to the flag led by class vice-president Alan Guibord, and the singing of America, which was conducted by Matthew Hoots and led by class song leaders Jennifer D'Onofrio and Ethan Krasnoo, class president Heather Norton welcomed the graduates, their families and friends. She reminded the seniors that the class of 1993 was a class of firsts. They began the Mr. Andover High School contest that has become an annual event at the school, she said. And they planned the first Senior Safari, an all-night, alcohol- and drug-free celebration in the school's gym for seniors on graduation night.

Ms. Norton thanked her classmates for their contributions that made AHS special. "Without just one of us we couldn't be the class of '93."

Michele LaSalle, who gave the ABC presentation, was the second speaker. ABC is an acronym for 'A Better Chance,' a program that recruits academically talented students of color from all economic backgrounds and enrolls them in the nation's leading public and private schools.

"In the three years that I have attended Andover High School, I have become the strong, intelligent, independent individual that stands before you today.

"Here, in Andover, I have learned many new things regarding the future. But the most important is unity... for by sharing with each other what makes us different, we can all bask in the glory of what makes us the same," Ms. LaSalle said. [See page 5A.]

Her friends in the bleachers gave Ms. LaSalle moral support. They waved poster boards that spelled out M-I-C-H-E-L-E and, at the end of her address, they rolled the cards into oversized megaphones and shouted their approval.

American Field Service (AFS) students Philippe Burkhalter from Switzerland and Marion Legeary from France thanked everyone who made their year-long exchanges possible. They each presented Andover High Principal Tim Thomas with the flags of their countries.

Since 1963 Andover High has hosted 49 foreign exchange students.

Class essayist Jennifer Batts was the next to speak. Ms. Batts told her fellow graduates not to be afraid or intimidated to leave the safe, stable environment that Andover High School has provided. [See page 15A.]

"I am proud today to introduce the best there is, our class of 1993. Our class has much to be proud of. We have spent our time and energy making a difference," said Ms. Batts, who went on to name the various community service activities that seniors participated in and the initiatives they have taken to combat stereotyping and prejudice.

"We have come together, each bringing forth our special talents. The class of 1993 will go on and be strong, stay close and succeed. As the class of '93 graduates, I would encourage all of us to throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in our sails. Let each of us ...Explore. Dream. Discover," she said.

Kirstin Nowell, the secretary/treasurer of the graduating class, presented Mr. Thomas with the seniors' gift to the school, a check for $1,000. Class officers will meet with school administrators within the next few weeks to decide how to spend the money.

Following the preliminary addresses, the Andover High School choir sang "The Impossible Dream" from the musical play Man of La Mancha. It was arranged by Marcel Frank and directed by chorus teacher Bob Lague.

Guest speaker Norm Bossio, a former school superintendent and author of several books on education, shared with the graduates and the audience several humorous stories with a moral. A young boy was painting a flower in class. He created a page of colors. When his teacher saw his painting she took a second piece of paper and said, "I'll show you how to do it." When the boy saw what his teacher had painted he decided he liked his own creation of mixed colors better, Mr. Bossio said.

"I encourage all of you," said Mr. Bossio as he gestured to the class of 1993, "to paint your own pictures."

Life is stressful. Take it a little easier, he suggested. Mr. Bossio was answered with enthusiastic applause and cheers.

The class valedictorian, Matthew Liberty, and salutatorian, Kevin Foltz, were then announced and members of the School Committee began presenting the graduates with their diplomas. Once the final diploma was presented and the students were seated, they were officially named graduates. Cheers, whoops and a number of mortarboards were offered up as the graduates sought out family and friends in the audience.

Adjusting their caps and sharing memories

By Lisa Boudreau

As the the class of '93 was gathered waiting for commencement exercises to begin Monday evening, many reminisced about their four years at Andover High School. As the graduates made last-minute adjustments to their caps and gowns, some shared their memories:

Bert Vining of Patriot Drive said he will miss "the great faculty. They really made the four years special."

Speaking of special, Mr. Vining's graduation attire was extraordinary. He pinned a small, cloth Ziggy doll dressed in a cap and gown to his own mortarboard. The doll was a graduation gift from his younger sister, Anna, who will also graduate this season... from Bancroft Elementary School, later this month, he said.

Tricia McNeice of Arthur Road and Ellen Sullivan of Deerberry Lane said they will miss exciting mishaps like the chemical spill in the school's science storage closet, which closed school for a day last fall. But they will not miss being scolded for talking in the library.

Homeroom buddies Mike O'Sullivan of Spencer Court, Peter O'Shea of Washington Avenue, and Sean O'Leary of Landau Lane said they will miss each other.

"Everyone says they are happy to get out and graduate, but then they realize the friends they are leaving behind," said Mr. O'Sullivan. He will attend the University of New Hampshire in the fall.

Mr. O'Shea will attend the University of Massachusetts Lowell and Mr. O'Leary said he is going to miss his younger brother, Jake's, company. Mr. O'Leary has the farthest to travel of all his friends. He will attend the University of Nebraska.

Doug Batchelder of Burton Farm Drive, who will attend UNH, and J.P. Ciruso of Cherokee Circle, who will journey south to Florida and attend the University of Tampa, said they, too, will miss their friends.

Chad Murphy of Shawsheen Road said he will miss working at the school's TV studio and all the friends he's made. He will attend Emerson College in Boston.

Renee Pelletier of High Street said, "Believe it or not, I'm going to miss the routine of high school... and my friends."

She will study marketing at UMass Lowell in the fall.

Kate Parker of Tewksbury Street said homeroom talks with her friends, and her favorite teacher, Bill Drummond, are the two things she'll miss the most.

Laurie Picardi of Jefferson Lane said she will miss her favorite teacher, Jay Darrin's "snide and sarcastic remarks. He always made me laugh," she said, waving a graduation card from the teacher.

Heather Norton of Florence Street and Jennifer Batts of Argyle Street said they will miss seeing each other on a daily basis.

"We'll miss our friends, the ones we've had since grammar school and middle school. They've been there for us through the good times and the bad," said Ms. Batts.

Ms. Norton agreed. "Friends from Andover High are going to be friends for life," she said.

Unity is vital for the future, ABC student tells fellow grads

Michele L. LaSalle

Michele L. LaSalle, a senior at Andover High School and an ABC student, addressed her classmates during commencement exercises Monday night.

They tell us we can take on the world, and I believe them. They tell us we have what it takes, and I believe them. They tell us to be bold and brave, and I believe we will. They told us we would make it, and we have. Ladies and gentlemen, once again, welcome to the graduation ceremony for the class of 1993.

My name is Michele LaSalle and I am an ABC student. ABC, an acronym for A Better Chance, is a program which seeks academically talented students of color from all economic backgrounds and provides them with access to excellent secondary education at the nation's leading independent and public schools. The ABC program is both challenging and demanding. It takes initiative, competence, perseverance, and hard work. It requires making choices and taking risks. It insists that you become the very best person you are capable of being. ABC puts you between where our society is and all that it might become. The rest is left up to you.

In the three years that I have attended Andover High School I have become the strong, intelligent, independent individual who stands before you today. The majority of opportunities that I have been able to take advantage of here would never have been available to me in New York. There was nothing but negative surroundings where I grew up, and if it weren't for ABC, I would not be graduating today.

Here, in Andover, I have learned many new things regarding the future. But the most important is unity. Together we can conquer anything, alone we are useless. I know that may sound a bit drastic, but it really is that simple. With all the problems of racism, sexism, homophobia, poverty and drugs, we are actually killing ourselves. Every day you hear of innocent people suffering or dying because of ignorance. It's not the guns, knives, drugs or violent acts themselves that kill people, it is the ignorance of those who use or perform them that do the damage. Our predecessors made vital mistakes and it seems history is repeating itself. The fight against ignorance is a long and hard one, but together it can be simplistic.

We are the ones who will prevent, and eventually stop, those violent acts we hear of daily. Keeping in mind that the fight for the equalities of race, sex and ethnicity are not that of just one person, but of everyone. We must keep ignorance in the closet and let our minds be free. For by sharing with each other what makes us different, we can all bask in the glory of what makes us the same.

My fight is your fight, and when you need me I will be there. When you stumble and fall, I will be there. When you need someone to talk to, I will be there. But most of all, when you just want to smile, laugh and enjoy who you are, no matter what the consequences may be, you can definitely bet that I will be standing right there.

An open letter to Andover High School graduating class of 1993

By Matt Liberty

Valedictorian, AHS class of 1993

The Berlin Wall, Russian coup d'état, unification of Germany, Gulf War, Bosnia, fax machines, buckyballs, Democrats in power, Noriega, Haitian boat people, Russian democracy...

Four years. Just four years. While we have been sheltered here at Andover High School, the world has been changing. Now it is time for us to enter "Into the Great Wide Open." It is our turn.

Not unlike the people of the former USSR, we have been confined. We have been confined by our parents, the educational system and society.

Now we are rebelling, breaking from our confinement. We are reaching out for new and unfamiliar territory. We do not know what the future has in store for us. All we have is a dream, a dream of freedom, hope and success.

We are now presented with a tremendous opportunity. The open territory lies before us. With our dreams and our ambitions, we choose our paths. We can follow but one path out of the countless options. That is the opportunity. A chance to determine the course of our own lives.

However, we must face this opportunity with strength since the tremendous freedom that accompanies it can be overwhelming. Like the people of the former Soviet Union, many new choices are being presented to us and new doors are being opened. All these new experiences can be overwhelming. We must be bold but wise in accepting our freedom. The freedom is a privilege and should not be feared. We can use this freedom to make the choices to follow our dreams.

But these choices are not limited to just the individual. Together, we determine the path of our town, our state, our country, even our world. We are now in control. The world has become our playground. With this diploma, we leave the confines of the guided path and strike out on our own, together.

AHS essayist: 'Sail away from the safe harbor'

By Jennifer Batts

Today marks the day when we step into a new world. For us this new world is imaginative, exciting and somewhat intimidating.

We are leaving what we know best, a small, safe, stable environment. It has been a secure world where structure and restriction and dependence have nurtured our progress.

Andover High School has been a second home to us in many ways as we have lived many of the most memorable times of our lives here. Through our commitment to academics we have learned how to think, to reason, to question and to wonder. Through our involvement in athletics we have learned the importance of team effort, spirit, commitment and 'Warrior Pride.'

Jennifer Batts

In all of our individual activities we have strived to experience the joys of success and the tribulations of defeat. Now we face the great wide open where opportunity knocks, challenge beckons. Dependence shifts to independence. Are we prepared? Are we confident we can take our place as contributors to our society?

I am so proud today to introduce the best there is, our class of 1993. Our class has much to be proud of. We have spent our time and energy making a difference. Members of the class of 1993 have walked for hunger, visited and assisted the elderly, fed the hungry, formed Big Brother/Big Sister relationships and tutored students in need. In response to the universal problems of stereotyping and racism, our class has played a leadership role in attempting to help solve these critical issues. We have come together, each bringing forth our special talents and sharing these talents with each other. As we continue our voyage together, life may teach us some painful lessons; however, it is from adversity that strength is born. We may lose occasional innings, but with faith, confidence and perseverance, I know we'll win the game. This is a time in our lives where we experience mixed emotion, anticipation and uncertainty. As we face the unknown, let us remember that procrastination only breeds failure. Take advantage of your own capabilities, have faith in your beliefs. People who have mastered the art of living seem to be guided by an internal compass. They might not always stay on the right track, but they will all always return to the proper course.

With these words of wis-

Through our commitment to academics we have learned how to think, to reason, to question and to wonder. Through our involvement in athletics we have learned the importance of team effort, spirit, commitment and 'Warrior Pride.'
In all of our individual activities we have strived to experience the joys of success and the tribulations of defeat.

dom, the class of 1993 will go on and be strong, stay close and succeed. In the great wide open, we're set free to build a future piece by piece, by thought, by choice, by courage and by determination.

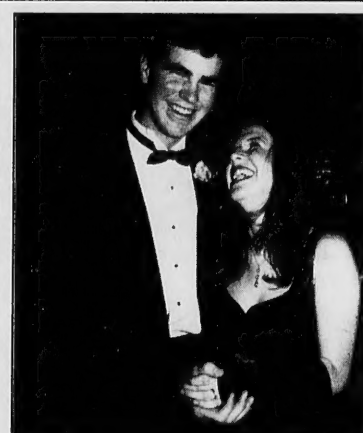

As we celebrate this significant milestone in our lives, we reflect on the unforgettable memories that we have shared together as the class of '93. Still we must recognize that moving on to life's new challenges will certainly present us with constant reminders of our strong commitment to each other and on a larger note, to our own community. We are a strong, committed, caring class whose memories will never fade. Let us go forth from this day forward and remember whatever we can do or dream we can begin; boldness has genius, power and magic in it. So, today, as the class of '93 graduates, I would encourage all of us to throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in our sails. Let each of us... Explore. Dream. Discover.

The ballroom of the Andover Marriott was the setting May 15 for the AHS prom for 560 students and faculty. Here Jim Batchelder greets students Josh Marmer and Sarah Goldin.

Robin LaPointe and Will Dailey hit the dance floor. The theme song this year was "I Will Always Love You."

Open letter to class of '93

This world is not mine, nor yours, but ours. We must work together to make it enjoyable for all. We share the water, land and air. We share information, ideas and products. We must learn to work together.

We are not alone in the pursuit of our dreams. Many people have come before and many will follow, but now is our time. It is our time to choose our path, to follow our dreams, to determine our destiny.

We have a great opportunity. So, let's make the most of it and let's make a difference.
